MOTHER AND FAMILY ARE CHLOROFORMED WHILE THEY SLEEP

Mysterious and Fiendish Visit Wednesday Morning to the Home of Mrs. A. D. Duncan, 318 South Boulevard

ONE, A YOUNG WOMAN, IS KNOCKED IN HEAD

Her Injuries Not Serious, However—Police at Loss to Explain the Motive for the Attack

Five members of the family of Mrs. A. D. Duncan, 318 South Boulevard, were chloroformed as they slept, and a sixth, a young woman, was knocked unconscious by a blow from a blunt instrument, some time after midnight Wednesday morning.

Tracks were found about the residence, and the police, who were called there before 6 o'clock in the morning, can find no motive for what they believe was a visit to the residence by an unknown man or men. Mrs. Duncan, however, is confident the visitors came to rob the house.

Miss Pearl Hilderbrand, a stenographer at the Cable Piano company, and daughter of Mrs. Duncan, was sleeping in the room with her sister, Mrs. Ruby Deal.

Miss Hilderbrand was the first of the family to awake, and her first conscious thought, according to reports, were that her hair was matted with blood and that blood was caked on her face.

Then she noticed the odor of chloroform in the room, and with some difficulty aroused her sister.

CHLOROFORM EVERYWHERE

Going through the house the two young women found the odor of chloroform in every room, and the occupants when aroused, with difficulty, seemed in a stupor.

Besides Mrs. Duncan and her two daughters, the other victims of the chloroform fiend were Earl Hilderbrand, aged 19 years, and Ernest Hilderbrand, aged 18 years.

The two young men werearoused with more difficulty than were the ladies and it is believed that an unusual amount of the drug was held over their faces as they were sleeping.

While Miss Pearl Hilderbrand had been asleep two severe blows over the head with a blunt instrument, her injuries are not serious, and Mrs. Duncan supposes her daughter stirred as the chloroform was being administered and that the marauder, fearing discovery, knocked her unconscious.

Although she suffered from an intense headache, when she was awakened, Mrs. Deal declares that she does not remember any unusual occurrence during the evening, the presumption being that she was the first to be chloroformed.

While Mrs. Duncan asserts that she is confident that the chloroformers were bent on robbery, an investigation developed that nothing in the house has been disturbed and nothing is missing.

ENTERED THROUGH WINDOW.

Evidently the chloroform fiends entered the house by a window of the room occupied by Miss Hilderbrand and Mrs. Deal. The tracks led all of the way around the house, and to the window, while hthe young ladies had left open. It was the only window open on the ground floor, and there was no evidence of any attempt to break into a window or a door.

The call officers who were sent to investigate the strange occurrence called the detective department to take charge of the case, and Detective Eugene Coker is making an investigation.

The detectives are mystified because of the failure of the marauder to ransack the residence.

SECOND PHAGAN INDICTMENT PROBABLE

WORSE AND MORE OF IT

CONLEY NEGRO MAY BE INDICTED OVER DORSEY'S PROTEST

New Grand Jury Will Take Up Case and Make an Effort to Get a True Bill Against Negro as Principal

NEGRO HAS ALREADY ADMITTED COMPLICITY

Solicitor Dorsey Is Expected to Vigorously Oppose Jury's Move—Negro Sweated Again by Detectives

It was learned Wednesday by The Journal, on reliable authority, that there is a strong probability of the Fulton county grand jury which was recently organized by the election of W. D. Beattie as foreman will take up the case of Jim Conley, negro sweeper at the National Pencil factory, and confessed accomplice to the murder of Mary Phagan, before the trial of Leo M. Frank, who is accused of the crime by the negro, is entered upon.

If the grand jury takes up the negro's case, it is believed that a bill charging the negro with the crime as a principal will be considered and if an indictment is brought it seems probable that murder will be the charge.

The grand jury will take up Conley's case over the vigorous protest of Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey, who it is stated, has not changed his theory about the murder.

Solicitor Dorsey has from the beginning taken the position that Conley should be held as a material witness and that this was not the time for the grand jury to investigate his connection with the Phagan murder. If the grand jury takes up the negro's case there seems little doubt that the solicitor will bitterly oppose its action.

An indictment of Conley prior to the trial of Frank as principal would undoubtedly greatly weaken the state's case, and the solicitor is expected to use all the influence he has with the grand jury to persuade it not to consider an indictment.

SHEETS THIS WEEK.

A meeting of the grand jury will probably be called during the present week, its chief object being, it is said, to take up oConley's case. It is said that a number of the members of the jury are of the opinion that it is the grand jury's duty to investigate Conley's story and determine whether an indictment should not be returned against him.

In response to their requests it is said that the foreman, W. D. Beattie, has practically decided to call a meeting. Foreman Beattie was in conference with the solicitor Tuesday, but both of them declined to state what the subject of their conversation was.

It is believed that the probability of the grand jury taking up Conley's case and considering an indictment was the cause of the sweating given to the negro Wednesday by the solicitor and Detectives Starnes and aCmpbell.

It is probable that the solicitor wanted to go over the negro's story and make doubly sure that he had told everything that he knows in connection with the crime. Whatever the object, it is known that the negro was put through a gruelling examination, and that every effort was made to wring additional information from him.

CONLEY GRILLED AGAIN.

James Conley, the negro who has confessed that he was an accomplice in the Mary Phagan murder, was grilled again Wednesday by Detectives Starnes and Campbell, who have been working under the direction of the solicitor general.

While the solicitor maintains that the state's theory of the crime has not been changed and he is going ahead with plans for the trial of Leo M Frank on July 28, the continued sweating of the negro has occasioned much speculation.

Immediately after Conley made his three startling affidavits, in which he

TURKS DETERMINE TO ROUT BULGARS FROM ADRIANOPLE

Government Decides to Push Ottoman Troops Forward and Reccupy Stronghold Bulgars Captured Recently

(By Associated Press.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 16.—The government is determined to push forward Ottoman troops as far as the stronghold of Adrianople, captured by the Bulgarians after a prolonged siege during the recent Balkan war.

Although official circles in Constantinople are reticent on the subject, it is understood such a forward step is the deliberate plan of the government. It intends to take this bold action not only because of the material advantages to be gained, but because of the moral effect it will have on Turkey's internal situation. It is expected that by this means the position of the government will be strengthened and consolidated, and it is felt that even if the powers insist on bringing pressure to bear to compel the maintenance of the future frontier line between Turkey and Bulgaria from Enos on the Aegean sea to Midia on the Black sea, Turkey will yet be in a position to enforce the autonomy of the province of Thrace.

Thus far, however, the powers have not addressed any communication to the Turkish government on the subject of the advance of the Ottoman troops toward the north.

PRESIDENT SUMMONS AMBASSADOR WILSON TO DISCUSS MEXICO

Insistent Inquiries of Foreign Powers as to U. S. Attitude Toward Huerta Regime Precipitates Conference

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 16.—President Wilson today, after an early conference with Secretary Bryan over the latest aspects of the Mexican situation, presented by inquiries of foreign powers as to the attitude of the United States, ordered Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson at Mexico City to proceed to Washington immediately for a conference.

Ambassador Wilson will hurry north on either the battleship Michigan or Louisiana from Vera Cruz if any delay would be entailed by waiting for a commercial steamer. Officials here believe the almost total interruption of railroad traffic between Mexico City and the United States will force the ambassador to make his trip by water. He is not expected here before July 23 at the earliest.

It is believed in official and diplomatic circles that an important announcement of the attitude of the United States in the pending situation will be made after the ambassador's conference with the president and Secretary Bryan. The president's action today, coming closely after the unofficial announcement that some of the foreign powers which already have recognized the Huerta government were pressing for some indication of this government's attitude toward the continued disorders in Mexico, leads to that belief.

BRYAN REFUSES TO TALK.

Secretary Bryan positively declined to add any information to his brief announcement of Ambassador Wilson's call to Washington.

However, it is assumed that the administration desires to learn from the ambassador directly what influences actuated the foreign diplomatic reports in Mexico when they jointly agreed to address their governments with what amounted to a formal complaint against the attitude of the United States in its relations with the Huerta regime.

President Wilson has kept an open mind on the subject and is thought to feel himself bound to adhere to the policy he announced early in his administration of lending moral encouragement only to such governments in Latin-America as were founded upon constitutional law and practice.

However, it is understood that he is ready to give due weight to any representations Ambassador Wilson may care to make.

The president has had the benefit of private reports from several of his personal friends, who have travelled in Mexico recently, but those were unofficial and not sufficient to form the basis of formal attitude if there was to be any change in policy.

Secretary Bryan was asked if the coming of Ambassador Wilson to Washington would change his projected lecture tour. He replied:

"The newspaper men might have assumed that my lecture dates would not interfere with business instead of assuming that they would. All my lecture dates were made subject to cancellation."

Senator Fall has informally notified the foreign relations committee that he intends to ask the senate to discharge it from further consideration of his bill to repeal the neutrality statute of 1912, under which the Huerta government now is importing munitions of war, while they are denied to the constitutionalists. He will ask the senate to pass it.

COMMISSIONER STANLEY "DICTATOR," IS CHARGE

Senator McNeil Declares Head of Labor Bureau Is Infringing on People's Rights

That H. M. Stanley, commissioner of the state department of commerce and labor, is a "dictator" in seeking to have passed certain factory bills that came up for a third reading in the senate Wednesday morning, was charged by Senator W. D. McNeil, of the Twenty-second district, in a hot speech opposing the measure.

The bill, which occasioned this attack, was introduced by Senator Kea at the request of the commissioner. It provides that the department of commerce and labor shall have the authority to designate the placefent of seats for female employes in factories.

After a hot debate it was killed by the vote of 22 to 8.

This authority Senator McNeil characterized as an "infringement on the constitutional rights of the people."

"When this department was first established," said the senator, "I was heartily in faovr of it, but had no idea that a man would be at its head who possesses such dictatorial tendencies. The measure is unnecessary and tyrannical. Why, I wouldn't be surprised to see some senator advocate a bill instigated by this man asking the governor of the state for a chair for his secretary. It's an infringement and I would vote down it and all similar measures."

STANLEY REFUSES TO TALK.

When Commissioner Stanley was asked later if he cared to reply to Senator McNeil he replied that he did not care to discuss the question.

The question of seats occasioned more oratory and less legislation at Wednesday's session than has happened since the senate convened. The senators argued hotly for and against the placement of seats for the female employes.

Senator Tarver advocated the passage of the bill, as did Senator Millet and Senator Harrell, provided that it was amended so as to read "suitable placement of seats." Senator Shanks spoke for ten minutes against the bill and Senator Converse backed him, calling such legislation a "disease."

When the vote on the bill was finally called for it was downed by count of 22 to 8.

Another bill of Commissioner Stanley's requiring factory employes to report the making up of lost time to the department, was tabled. His third bill, requiring proper heat, sanitation, and ventilation in factories, was passed.

ONLY ONE BILL PASSED

This was the only bill passed by the senate at Wednesday's session.

Another child labor bill was introduced by Senator Longino. It differs from Senator Anderson's bill, already introduced, in one particular, that children under sixteen years of age must have had four years of grammar school education before they can work in factories.

The medical practice bill was reported favorably to the senate for the second time. The committee on hygiene and sanitation, which has it in charge, met Wednesday morning to grant a hearing to those opposed to the measure. The hearing resulted in no change of the previous recommendations.

The committee on the state sanitarium met and appointed July 1 as the date to visit Milledgeville, together with a committee from the house.

Wife Forgets Her Grievances When Her Husband Nears Death And Goes Back to Nurse Him

Despite Pretty Stenographer, Whom Wife Says He Preferred, and Two Years' Separation, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. McCall Are Reunited

Influenced by a love that has stood the test of his alleged preference for another woman, and of two years' separation, Mrs. D. D. McCall has returned to her husband, the former head of the Georgia Motor company, to nurse him through an illness from which physicians have said he cannot recover.

For three weeks Mr. McCall has been at the Wesley Memorial hospital, unconscious much of the time, near to death and without funds, and for three weeks Mrs. McCall has been with him night and day, trying to nurse him back to health.

Mrs. McCall, with tears in her eyes, told the story Wednesday morning at the Wesley Memorial hospital, of why she was separated from her husband, and how she went to nurse him during his illness.

SENT FOR HER.

"When he thought he was dying," she said, "he sent for me. Of course I came, and I have nursed him until he is better. We have been separated for two years. He left me because I objected to his attentions to his stenographer. She was a pretty little thing, and a man is a man, you know. He liked her, and spent most of his time with her. He even had a private office built, so that they could be with each other more. I went down there one day, and found them in the office, and their conversation told me all I wanted to know. I slapped her face, and Mr. McCall told me to leave.

"I had begged him not to have so much to do with her, and I had said enough to her to make her understand my feelings, but until his business failed and he could no longer pay her, she stayed with him.

"I do not blame her so much. She is very young, and I am sure she could not have been trained better. Neither have I treasured an enmity against my husband. We have been good friends during the two years, and he has called to see me from time to time. But no woman wants to know that her husband is unduly attentive to another woman, and my pride would not permit me to remain with him.

STILL LOVES HIM.

"Still when he sent for me, I came; for a woman can't live with a man as long as I did with him and not love him. Yes, I do care for him yet; and if he gets well and wants me to remain with him, I will.

"He may not get well, though," she added after a pause.

Mrs. McCall, who is in the real estate business, has given most of her time to Mr. McCall since his illness; and she explained that her lack of finances for the expenses of his illness is due to that fact that she has been obliged to neglect her work to a certain extent. "His bills here are unpaid," she said, "and of course he needs money."

Mrs. McCall hopes that her devoted nursing will pull her husband through the crisis, and at all hours of the night, no matter how late it may be, she is quick to respond to his call.

"Yes," she said, with a sigh, "I remember that girl; but then it is some satisfaction to know that he wanted me when he thought that he was dying."

HUSBAND IS ARRESTED WITH HS STENOGRAPHER

Mrs. A. M. Trippe Appeals to Police, Claiming She Was Deserted

Driven to despair because her husband had deserted her and their three little tots for pretty Miss Beatrice Renfroe, a former stenographer at the Fulton Bag and Cotton mills, Mrs. A. M. Trippe, of 74 Doane street, complained to Probation Officer Coogler, with the result that the couple were arrested Wednesday morning.

Trippe was arrested at 124 Whitehall street, where Miss Renfroe is working, by Special Officer R. L. Hollingsworth, and a little later Miss Renfroe was arrested by the same officer at the Terminal hotel, where she and Trippe are alleged to have been living.

Miss Renfroe, twenty, and unusually pretty, met Trippe some time last year at 328 Houston street, where she was staying. She became his stenographer and is alleged to have gone with him last Christmas to Macon. Trippe returned to Atlanta, but, it is claimed, again left his wife and home and went back to Macon. He remained there about a month, returning to Atlanta in April. Miss Renfroe came back to this city from Macon the last part of June.

"I did love him once," sobbed Miss Renfroe, "but I don't now."

She says there was hardly a day that passed while they were separated that she did not get at least one letter profuse with his devotion to her, and that she would produce these in court if need be.

Mrs. Trippe states that she will not prosecute her husband if he will return to her and their three children and do a father's duty in supporting them.

The case is set for Thursday afternoon.

SERES CITIZENS CRUCIFIED AND HACKED TO DEATH

(By Associated Press.)

SALONIKI, July 16.—Full confirmation of the reported sacking and burning of the Macedonian town of Seres by the fleeing Bulgarian troops and of the slaughtering, hacking to death or burning alive of many inhabitants, has been sent to the Austro-Hungarian government by Consul General August Kral, of Saloniki.

Three-fourths of the formerly flourishing town of about 30,000 inhabitants is a mass of smoking ruins, says the consul general, who has just returned here from Seres, where he thoroughly investigated the situation.

Another horrifying story of massacre reached here today from Doiran, a town forty miles northwest of Saloniki. Mussulmans there have made a written declaration, countersigned by three local Bulgarian priests, that the Bulgarians slaughtered 36,000 Mussulmans who had sought refuge in Doiran from the surrounding districts.

WIFE MOURNS BY BODY OF MAN HER HUSBAND KILLED

S. Lathrop George Shoots Henry McClellan, Claiming He Destroyed His Home

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 16.—Although her husband is in jail charged with killing Henry McClellan yesterday afternoon as he slept in her beds, Mrs. S. Lathrop George prefers to remain beside the dead man than to be with her husband.

Mrs. George this morning appeared at the undertaker's where McClellan's body is laid out, and for hours mourned beside the body. In the meantime her husband, who admits the killing of McClellan, was in a cell at the barracks awaiting preliminary hearing.

F. Lathrop George yesterday afternoon shot and instantly killed Henry McClellan, an employe of the city, whom he found in the house occupied by his wife, from whom he is separated. After the shooting George left the house and surrendered to the first policeman he met.

George entered the house and found McClellan in bed. He told his victim to get down on his knees and pray to God, as he was going to kill him. McClellan did not get up, so George shot him as he lay in bed. McClellan then got out of bed, and falling on his knees, begged George not to shoot again.

"I shot him once, then let him pray awhile, and then shot him again," said George. "I shot him three times before I finished him."

McClellan was partly disrobed when assistance reached him after the shooting. He was rushed to a sanitarium, where he died shortly afterwards. He was shot in the right side and through the right arm. The third shot evidently went wild. It was seen from the first that he would have no chance for recovery.

After the shooting George left the house and proceeded to the house of his mother, where he left his revolver. He then approached an officer on the street.

"I want to surrender to you," he said. "I have just killed a man."

George and his wife have had trouble for some time. Recently the husband had made remarks to show that he was suspicious of McClellan. He endeavored to have a peace warrant sworn out for McClellan, but was dissuaded. It is presumed that he kept watch on the house where his wife lives until he saw McClellan enter.

Mrs. George was in the yard in the rear of the house when the shooting occurred.

"A month ago I separated from my wife because of McClellan," said George. "I knew his habits, and was certain that when I went to the house in the afternoon I would find him in bed."

Uncle Sam Urges Farmers to Make Vinegar of Apples

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Farmers need have no fear of violating the law in making vinegar, if they use pure apple juice, and dealers need not hesitate to sell it.

The federal bureau of chemistry so declared in a statement issued today to encourage farmers of Western Pennsylvania to resume the making of apple vinegar, and thus save thousands of bushels of apples.

Some years ago, owing to a misunderstanding of the law, dealers were said to have become afraid to handle farmers' vinegar, believing it would not meet the government's requirements and the farmers allowed their apples to rot for the same reason. The government pure food experts now seek to reassure both the farmer and the dealer.

Judge Moses Wright Also Urges Stringent Locker Club Probe

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ROME, Ga., July 16.—At the opening of the July term of Floyd superior court a decided sensation was caused by the charge of Judge Moses Wright to the grand jury, in which he scored the loan sharks and urged that the grand jury investigate and indict, if possible, all men who were charging more than a reasonable rate of interest. He urged further an investigation of all the Rome locker clubs, and insisted upon the indictment of all persons connected with the operation of illegal clubs which had been organized for the purpose of evading the law.

He condemned the county jail as insanitary and urged that an appropriation be made for its improvement.

NICODEMUS BROTHERS ARE HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Preliminary Hearing at Dalton Results in Their Both Being Denied Bail

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

DALTON, Ga., July 16.—John and Tom Nicodemus, charged with being accessories to the murder of Will Parrish, were yesterday afternoon bound over to the grand jury, being remanded to jail and denied bail.

In the hearing it was said that they accompanied Dan Hatfield, the man who killed Parrish, to Parrish's home, where he asked them to share a watermelon he had cut. Neighbors living within a few yards of Parrish, heard nothing of a quarrel, the first intimation of trouble being the noise from the pistol shot. When Hatfield escaped, Tom Nicodemus also ran, according to the evidence, and John Nicodemus was leaving when stopped by a neighbor.

It also was said that Mrs. Parrish, within less than a half-hour following her husband's death, sent word of his decease to an insurance agent, in whose company Parrish had a policy of about $100. One witness swore that the day of the tragedy Parrish told him that his wife had threatened him with her sons, John and Tom Nicodemus.

The Nicodemus brothers, in their statements, stuck to their original account that Parrish was advancing on Hatfield with an axe when Hatfield shot him.

Obstinate Acne Quickly Yields

Fine Remedy that Clears Skin of Pimples on Cheeks, Temples, Sides of Nose and Chin.

Acne attacks the glandular structure of the skin, more particularly those tiny glands that secrete fat.

And it is here that S. S. S., the famous blood purifier is most active in its influence.

There is one ingredient in S. S. S., the purpose of which it is to stimulate the cells in the tissues that they select from the blood the nutriment that makes new skin and thus eliminates all irritants, acids and parasites that inflame the glands. There is a natural tendency of the fine network of blood vessels in the skin to throw off impurities, but where a persistent inflammatory process has invaded the skin, the natural repair work of the blood is interfered with. It requires the stimulating activity of S. S. S. to overcome such morbid conditions. If you have been troubled with acne, do not despair of a cure.

You can get S. S. S. in any drug store, but insist upon having it. The great Swift Laboratory in Atlanta, Ga., prepares this famous blood purifier, and you should take no chance by permitting anyone to recommend a substitute. And if you blood condition is such that you would like to consult a specialist freely, address the Medical Dept., The Swift Specific Company, 181 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

PUPILS OF HIGH SCHOOLS GREAT FORCE FOR UPLIFT

Good Citizenship Should Be Direct Aim of Their Studies, Says Educator

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The 1,300,000 boys and girls in the high schools in the United States constitute the greatest force of any nation in the world for social uplift and advancement of civilization, in the opinion of Dr. Thomas Jesse Jones, of the United States bureau of education.

In a statement issued through the bureau today, Dr. Jones declared that with the teachers of social science and history in these schools rests the responsibility of developing this force for national good.

"Good citizenship should be the direct aim of the high school courses in social science and history," says Dr. Jones.

"Good citizenship is the test that must be applied to every topic in these courses. Facts, conditions, theories, activities which do not contribute directly to the appreciation of methods of human betterment have no claim on the time of the pupil."

The educator contends that civics must be not merely a study of government machinery, but a study of social efforts to improve mankind.

"It is the things near at hand and socially fundamental that should be taught first," he says, "every pupil should, of course, know how the president of the United States is elected, but he should also understand the duties of the health officer in his community."

Heat a Menace to Lives of Old Folks

Sickness and Misery Result From Clogged Bowels in Hot Weather

People advancing in years should be very careful of their health during the hot months, as heat has a very enervating and weakening effect on them. One has only to look at the daily list of fatalities to elderly people reported by the papers to realize that these are the hardest months for them to overcome.

The easily digested foods should be eaten, and then only sparingly, and alcoholic beverages and iced things should be avoided as much as possible. Exercise should be taken daily in the shade. Most important of all in the maintenance of health and vigor at this time is to avoid constipation, with its accompanying headaches and muscular and blood congestion. This is accomplished by the timely use of a gentle laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is the ideal laxative for elderly people, as it is mild, tastes pleasant and does not gripe. Best of all, it contains valuable tonic properties that build up and strengthen the system.

Elderly people should avoid strong physics, cathartics, purgatives, salts and pills, as they are a shock to the system. In the opinion of reliable people like Mrs. C. J. Nicholas, 2010 Emerson St., Berkeley, Cal., who esteems it a benefit to mankind, and Ida C. Milchsack, 210 N. Law St., Allentown, Pa., who declares that her stomach and bowels are now in perfect working order, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the right remedy to use. It can be obtained of any druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a bottle. The latter size is bought steadily by those who already know its value.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain same by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 418 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

SEEK N. Y. BARBER NAMED IN CRAWFORD CHARGES

Attorney for Heirs Declares He's Certain to Be Arrested Within Next 24 Hours

J. S. James, of counsel for the heirs who are trying to wrest the estate of Joshua B. Crawford from his widow, Mrs. Mary Belle Crawford, is seeking the arrest of Fred Lumb, a New York barber, who is charged by a warrant in Justice C. H. Girardeau's court with being an accessory before the fact of J. B. Crawford's alleged murder.

It is alleged by the counsel for the heirs who are contesting Mrs. Crawford's right to the estate, that Mrs. Crawford and Lumb were in a conspiracy, which resulted in his death. Last week a warrant charging Mrs. Crawford with the murder of her husband, who died in 1909, was drawn in Judge Girardeau's court. She was released on a $6,250 bond.

EXPECTS ARREST SOON.

Attorney James declares that he is making every effort to effect the arrest of the New York barber. He last heard of Lumb when he appeared in a lawyer's office in New York, he says, to make a deposition for Mrs. Crawford. He is confident that he will be placed under arrest within the next twenty-four hours.

The principal witness to substantiate the charge of murder plot is Mrs. E. C. Sargent, who according to Mr. James, will testify that repeatedly she heard Mrs. Mary Belle Crawford and Mrs. Mary Belle Savage say "I will marry the old turkey buzzard (meaning Crawford), get his money and then marry Lumb."

A Mrs. Gertrude Painter, according to the attorney, will testify that she heard Mrs. Crawford say that she would kill her husband by tanking him up on whisky.

Mrs. Mary Belle Savage was married to J. B. Crawford in St. Augustine, Fla., early in 1909. Lumb was then in Florida, it is said. Mrs. Crawford and her husband came to Atlanta and within a few weeks Crawford died. During that time and for two months after the death of the aged man, Lumb was there, according to the counsel for the Crawford heirs.

Attorneys Burton Smith and Reuben R. Arnold, counsel for Mrs. Crawford, refuse to consider seriously the criminal charges against Mrs. Crawford, and declare that not only will her innocence be shown but that it will be demonstrated that Crawford died a natural death. Dr. J. W. Hurt, who attended Crawford during his last illness, swears that death was caused by pneumonia.

The civil litigation over the $250,000 estate left by Joshua Crawford continued before Auditor James N. Anderson on Wednesday. The case has been on trial for two months.

BELIEVE MARRIAGE VALID.

That the marriage of Mrs. Mary Belle Savage to Joshua B. Crawford in Florida in 1909 was valid and perfectly legal was the conclusion reached by attorneys P. H. Brewster, Luther Z. Rosser and J. J. Barge, when they were representing the Crawford heirs, was a statement made by Mr. Brewster, when he was on the witness stand Wednesday.

Mr. Brewster, with the attorneys named, was representing several of the heirs, when the first effort to take the estate from the widow was made soon after Mr. Crawford's death. It was then the charge that Mrs. Crawford's marriage was not valid because she had not divorced a former husband, was first made. Mr. Brewster stated on the witness stand that he made a vigorous probe into the case and consulted a number of attorneys in Pennsylvania, where Mrs. Crawford lived. As a result he found that the marriage was valid, he said.

The charge of a plot to murder J. B. Crawford, which has grown out of the civil litigation over the $250,000 estate is left, grows more sensational, and a rumor Wednesday was that other warrants are soon to be drawn, charging two men besides Fred Lumb, of New York, with being accessories in the alleged crime.

Detectives in the employ of the counsel for the so-called Crawford heirs have as yet been unable to locate Lumb.

DENIAL FROM SMITH.

The recital of Mrs. Sallie Alexander during the course of the Crawford will case hearing before an auditor Tuesday, when she said that she knocked Jasper N. Smith to the ground, is vigorously denied by the owner of "the House-that-Jack-Built."

The affair of which Mrs. Alexander spoke, according to Atlanta's veteran bachelor, occurred some thirty years ago, and often Mrs. Alexander tried to hit him.

He easily warded off the blow, he says.

Mrs. Alexander, however, said in court that when she struck him Mr. Smith fell to the ground like a beef and got up running like a rabbit.

The trouble was occasioned by a dispute over rent for the house in which Mrs. Alexander was living.

INVITE SENATOR BACON TO ADDRESS ASSEMBLY

House Resolution to Invite Him Adopted—Senator Smith Speaks Friday

By resolution adopted in the house, Wednesday morning, Senator A. O. Bacon, of Georgia, will be invited to address the general assembly of the state with both houses in joint session, upon any date that is convenient to him. The concurrence of the senate will make the resolution valid.

A committee of three from the house and two from the senate is authorized, its duty being to confer with the senator and secure his acceptance of the invitation and learn from him the date that he prefers to fill it.

The resolution inviting him was adopted unanimously by the house. It recites that Senator Bacon is the first person in America to be elected to the United States senate under the new amendment to the federal constitution providing election by the people, and also that he is the first man whom Georgia has honored with four terms in the senate.

Senator Hoke Smith, the other senator from Georgia, was invited several days ago to address the legislature and will appear before them on Friday, was announced Tuesday.

Senator Smith to Arrive In Atlanta Thursday

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 16.—Senator Hoke Smith leaves Washington this afternoon for Atlanta, where he will address the state legislature on Friday at noon. The senator should reach Atlanta tomorrow morning about 11 o'clock over the Southern railway. He has engaged rooms in the Piedmont hotel and will be at home to callers tomorrow afternoon and night.

Senator Bacon Gives His Thanks to Georgia Voters

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Senator A. O. Bacon was deluged with letters and telegrams of congratulation on reaching his office today on his re-election to the United States senate. The New York dailies today comment heartily upon his re-election and commend his career in the senate. Senator Bacon today gave out a statement as follows:

"I am grateful to the people of Georgia; more so than I can find words to give expression. The honor is greater and has been more abundant than I deserve at the hands of my people. No honor ever came to me that I cherish more than this."

GUGGENHEIM DIVORCE DECLARED FRAUDULENT

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, July 16.—Declaring that the divorce of William Guggenheim, millionaire mining man, from Grace Brown Guggenheim Wahl in 1901, was obtained by fraud, collusion and criminal conspiracy, Circuit Court Judges Windes, Heard and Baldwin today instructed State's Attorney Hoyne to proceed in criminal action against alleged parties to the fraud.

PLAN MERGING EXPERIMENT STATION AND FARM COLLEGE

Movers Claim This Is Necessary to Save Government Appropriation

A movement having for its object the consolidation of the Georgia Experiment station with State College of Agriculture at Athens is under way in the general assembly. It contemplates the sale of the land which the experiment station owns near Griffin and the removal of the plant to Athens.

The principal argument urged in favor of this plan is that the United States government will discontinue the annual appropriation of $30,000 to the experiment station unless the state provides a supplementary appropriation sufficient for the maintenance.

It is pointed out that the state is unable to increase its appropriation of $900 to the station and, therefore, it will be impossible to continue its operation unless it is consolidated with the state agricultural college.

Those who advocate the consolidation call attention to the recent ultimatum from the federal government in which it was intimated that the $30,000 appropriation would be withdrawn if the practice of using a portion of this fund for the erection and repair of building and for the fixed expenses of the station, was continued.

It is further cited that the government has indicated its desire that the station should be under the management of the college of agriculture as is the case in a majority of the states.

The trustees of the station have asked the legislature to allow it an annual appropriation of $7,500 so that it will be unnecessary to divert the federal appropriations to any purposes other than those provided in the acts of congress, namely, to experiment in agriculture and scientific agricultural research.

This $7,500 appropriation is not provided in the general appropriations bill as prepared by the subcommittee of the appropriations committee and it is not likely to be included. There is little probability that a special appropriation bill carrying this amount can be gotten through the general assembly.

SECRETARY GARRSON TO BE IN ATLANTA THURSDAY

Will Be Too Busy on Inspection Trip, He Says, to Be Entertained Formally

No plans for entertainment or ceremony of any character in honor of Secretary of War Garrison, who will spend part of Thursday in Atlanta, have been made in advance of his coming.

A dispatch from Washington, received early Wednesday forenoon, stated that Secretary Garrison had left that city for Atlanta. Inasmuch as the train ride consumes some fourteen hours, the dispatch was interpreted to indicate that he and his party will reach Atlanta some time Wednesday night.

General B. K. Evans, U. S. A., commanding the local brigade, will be the official host of the party. He stated Wednesday that he had received no advice of their departure from Washington, and that then he did not know the hour at which they would arrive.

The Atlanta chamber of commerce sought Secretary Garrison's acceptance of a luncheon in his honor, planned for Thursday, but the secretary's reply was that he would have too little time to spend in the city and too much to do while here to permit his acceptance of any entertainment.

General Evans stated that the sole purpose of the secretary's visit will be to look over Fort McPherson, near Atlanta. No review or other ceremony is planned there, he said.

Mr. Garrison and Party On Way to Atlanta

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Secretary Garrison left today for Atlanta, the first stop on his trans-continental trip to inspect army posts and stations with a view to gather data to be used in his plan for the concentration of the army at important centers, and in making up his estimates for war department expenditures, to be submitted to congress next December. He was accompanied by Major General Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the army; Major General James B. Aleshire, chief of the quartermaster's corps,; Captain Bayard S. J. C. Schindel and Walter R. Pedigo, his secretary.

After visiting Atlanta they will go to the posts in Tennessee and Arkansas, thence to Texas City, Tex., to inspect the maneuver camp of the Second army division there. They will then proceed along the Mexican frontier to the Pacific coast and plan to return to Washington September 3.

In Secretary Garrison' absence the assistant secretary Henry S. Breckinridge, will be acting secretary of war.

COMMITTEE FAVORS MILLEDGE COUNTY

Bill Requiring Rigid Marriage Contract Is Recommended for Passage

The creation of Milledge county and a bill requiring medical certificates of would-be weds were two measures favored by senate committees at meetings Tuesday afternoon. They will be recommended for passage to the senate Wednesday morning.

A hot fight was made in the meeting of the constitutional amendments committee on the Milledge county measure. The chair had to decide the question, which stood four and four, when he voted. The new county, if created, will be composed of parts of the present counties of Burke, Jefferson, Emanuel and Jenkins, with Midville as the county seat.

The committee set a date for the hearing on the house bill creating Barrow county for 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The committee on sanitation and hygiene decided to recommend for passage Senator Hixon's bill requiring all persons who would contract for marriage to be of sound mind, 18 years of age if a male, sixteen years of age if a female; not afflicted with certain diseases; not addicted to the use of liquor or drugs, and to furnish medical certificates to this effect. The committee favored the bill unanimously.

ATLANTA CABBIES FORM LEAGUE WITH ROBBERS?

Charges Made to Police That Drivers Lead Unsuspecting Fares Into Traps

In a cab hold-up late Tuesday night, and another several nights ago that was very similar, and in other crimes wherein cabs figured that have been reported to the police, the authorities are convinced that they see evidence of rather startling conditions among Atlanta's cab drivers and are inclined to suspect that some drivers are operating without licenses for the principal purpose of delivering their victims into robbers' hands or that licensed drivers are working toward that same purpose.

Shortly after midnight Tuesday J. L. Ivy and W. A. Fowler, who live on rural free delivery route No. 4 near the city, entered a cab down town and directed the driver to take them to the Terminal station. They told the police that they trundled away until the cab stopped and they were amazed to find themselves on the Peters street viaduct with a negro standing beside the cab and pointing a revolver through the door at their heads. The highwayman commanded them to hold up their hands, which they did; whereupon the cabman himself dismounted from his seat and rifled their pockets of some $22. Both negroes then drove away, leaving them afoot.

A similar crime occurred several nights ago, when two other visitors in the city entered a cab at the Terminal station and directed the driver to a cross-town address. They wound up in the shadows of a desolate street somewhere near Elliott street, in a group of negroes. In this instance the driver sat inactive while the other negroes relieved his passengers of their money and valuables.

Another case was reported to the police by a woman whose address and name the police retain. She said that she took a cab at the Terminal station to ride across to the Union depot, where she was to make connection with another train and continue her journey. After she had gone several blocks, she saw by a street sign that she was on Formwalt street, going toward the southern outskirts of the city. She threatened to raise an outcry for the police if the cabman did not turn around forthwith, she said; and the driver reversed his course, delivering her at the Union depot barely in time for her to catch her train. She did not have an opportunity to report the matter until she was on her return trip through the city.

Numerous other complaints of this nature have been filed with the police, they say. The repetition of the offense has led the police to believe that there is an organized intent upon the part of cab drivers to rob their victims not after the usual fashion of robbers, but by relieving them of everything they have.

A close investigation has been composed by the police heads, and they are determined to unearth the "system" whose existence they suspect.

All cab drivers are required to register at police headquarters and obtain a permit before they are allowed to operate, and the police are on watch constantly for drivers who do not possess the required permit to operate their cabs.

JURY WILL AWARD CRAP GAME JEWELRY

After Going to Supreme Court It Comes Back for Final Disposition

The dispute of Andrew Nolan and J. C. Watters over $1,600 worth of diamonds and other jewelry, which has resulted in both men being fined in the criminal court on a gaming charge, and which has involved Chief of Detectives N. A. Lanford in two civil suits, must be decided by a jury, according to a decision of the supreme court handed down on Wednesday.

Nearly a year ago Nolan complained to Chief Lanford that Watters had taken a considerable sum of money and the jewelry away from him by using loaded dice in a crap game.

Watters was arrested and Chief Lanford took the jewelry from him and also made a case against Nolan.

Both men were fined in the criminal court, but both claimed the jewelry, and Nolan took a possessory warrant in a justice court against Chief Lanford for the "sparklers."

Then Watters went to the superior court on a ball trover proceeding against the detective.

Chief Lanford put the matter up to the court by securing an injunction to restrain both men from pressing the suits against him, and Judge W. D. Ellis ruled that the two claimants would have to interplead and let a jury in the superior court decide to which of them the jewelry belongs.

Watters appealed from this decision, but the supreme court has now affirmed Judge Ellis' decision.

WILL DEBATE SUFFRAGE AT BIG OPEN MEETING

Public Invited to Taft Hall Tuesday Night—Mrs. Peel to Preside

An open meeting for the discussion of both sides of the question of votes for women is announced for next Tuesday evening in Taft hall at the auditorium. The meeting was arranged by a group of interested women, and Mrs. William Lawson Peel, of Atlanta, will preside.

Already, it is said, a dozen or more leading men and women of Atlanta have been placed on the list of speakers for and against woman suffrage. Five minutes will be allotted to each speaker. Equal representation will be given to both sides.

Mrs. Peel herself, a leader in D. A. R. and social circles, will have an opinion to express in her own period of five minutes; but she declines flatly to tell beforehand which side of the question she will favor.

"It is my individual opinion," she says, "but what I have to say covers a good deal of careful study of the subject.

"After the recent action of Illinois and nine other states in giving the ballot to women, it behooves Georgia at least to study the merits of woman suffrage. The purpose of the meeting is patriotic first and foremost. It will be educative and interesting, and will indicate at least that men and women are not afraid to get together in Georgia and discuss vital questions."

NEW CHILD LABOR BILL INTRODUCED IN HOUSE

Anderson of Murray Proposes to Establish Age Limit Gradually

Representative Anderson, of Murray county, has introduced in the house a child labor bill that is different from other measures of a similar nature in that it provides for a graduated age limit and an additional educational proviso.

The bill provides that after 1913 no child under twelve years of age shall be employed in a factory or mill, after 1914 none under thirteen years of age, and after 1915 no child shall be given such employment who is under fourteen years of age.

The additional proviso is made that at no time after the passage of the act shall any person under sixteen years of age be employed in a mill or factory who has not been through four school grades.

The measure apparently aims to increase the age limit gradually so that the mills and factories would not be subjected to sudden readjustment of their systems.

SUGGESTS NEW RACING TRACK FOR AUTOMOBILES

Frank Weldon Will Present Matter to Council for Auto Men

At the next meeting of city council a communication will be read from Frank Weldon, representing several of Atlanta's automobile men, requesting a lease upon the city's property bought for a crematory near the Intrenchment Creek disposal plant, for the purpose of constructing there a circular board track for automobile racing, similar to that recently built and opened on the Jackson street show grounds for motorcycle racing.

Mr. Weldon asked Wednesday morning regarding this matter with Councilman C. L. Ashley, who as chairman of the sanitary committee of council is a member of the board of health which has supervision over the tract.

There are more than 200 acres in the property. It was purchased for the crematory use already stated, but the city's plans in that regard have changed. The erection of the new crematory near the gas works left the Intrenchment Creek tract unoccupied by the city.

An Enamel Ware Sale

Solid Carload Guaranteed English Grey First Quality Hand-Picked Enamel Ware

See window display. Note the low Prices. Every piece delivered To your door

—Tomorrow we place on sale a carload of the beautifully mottled English Grey Enamel Ware.

—A carload, mind you. An immense lot—thousands of pieces.

—Buying in such a quantity brought down the price; shipping a carload saved freight charges. Yours is the benefit.

—Low price, however, is not the talking point of English Grey Enamel Ware. The point we stress is QUALITY.

Most Enamel Ware is made on a steel base or body. English Grey enamel ware is made on an iron body. To take the enamel coating these bases or bodies are dipped into a fiery bath. Under the intense heat iron becomes porous. The enamel flows into all the pores and crevices and stays—forever. Steel, however presents almost as smooth a surface as glass. Though enamel sticks to it under heat, it may later crack or peel. To overcome this fault, manufacturers use acids, all too often poisonous.

English Grey Enamel will not crack nor peel. Nor does it contain poisonous substances. The makers guarantee it to be 99 5-10 per cent. pure. They empower us, moreover, to give you a new piece for any piece that goes wrong. But English Grey Enamel Ware will not go wrong—it is too well and carefully made. So much for the quality. Now consider these special introductory prices. (Come early for those marked "special.")

HOUSE FACES BIG FIGHT ON EQUALIZING TAXES

Minority of Ways and Means Committee Contend for Creating State Board

After continuous debate that lasted nearly four hours on the pros and cons of tax equalization, the ways and means committee of the house developed a hopeless split Tuesday afternoon that presages but one inevitable result—a minority fight on the floor of the house, led by some of the strongest men in the legislature for a board of state equalizers, rather than county boards, as was favorably reported by a vote of 13 to 9.

The first serious phase of the session came when F. A. Lipscomb, of Clarke, threatened to withdraw his bill drafted by Judge Andrew Cobb, of Athens, providing for the state board, when it was recommended for passage by substitute, the substitute being the bill of J. E. Sheppard, of Sumter, prescribing only county boards of equalization.

LIPSCOMB THREATENS SPLIT.

Mr. Lipscomb, who had been staunchly contending for his bill to pass in its entirety, declared that he would rather withdraw it than have it go to the house without what he considered its most salient feature. The committee, however, refused to allow the withdrawal. The vote for the substitute was 9 to 6, and these six members of the committee, headed by Mr. Lipscomb and Mr. Swift, of Muscogee, immediately gave notice that they would file a minority report and carry the fight to the floor of the house for a state board of equalizers.

The report of the subcommittee of five, which was expected to recommend a re-draft of all bills bearing on tax equalization, embodying the strongest and best features of each, was never made known, and it is doubtful if any outside of the inner committee know what conclusions were reached by them. At adjournment, the main committee was completely in the dark as to what the action may have been.

HOW THEY VOTED

The vote of the committee on the question of making a state board of equalizers, which was lost by the close majority of four votes, follows:

Ayes—Cole, Garlington, Jones, of Coweta, Lipscomb, Melson, Myrick, Rainey, Swift and Wheatley—9.

Nays—Bullard, Cooper, DeVaughn, Dorris, Evans, Jones, of Lowndes, McGehee, Oliver, Paulk, of Ben Hill, Sheppard, Suggs, Stovall, of Elbert, and Thompson—13.

When the fight goes to the floor of the house the entire issue will be on the question of state or county boards and on no other feature of the bills.

WHEATLEY TAKES A HAND

Crawford Wheatley, one of the ardent supporters of the state board, left his important appropriations committee to meet with the ways and means committee and bring about, if possible, order out of the impending chaos. He declared that county boards would bring little or no relief from the present antiquated system of equalization and admitted that he had participated himself in the past in giving in his tax returns.

"Every other tax payer in the state has been doing the same thing," he said in conclusion, "and I, for one, am tired of it. That is all."

It was the contention of the majority that the state at large would look with disapproval upon a state board as an unsafe body to pass on such questions, and a number of the committee members declared that they could not go back to their constituents and live in their midst under such a condition of affairs.

URGES W. & A. EXTENSION TO PORT OF ST. MARYS

Senator Sweat Presents Strong Arguments to W. & A. Senate Committee

Extension of the Western and Atlantic railroad (the state road to the sea is engaging serious attention at the present session of the legislature. Three measures bearing on the subject have been introduced. One, a resolution by Senator J. L. Sweat, of the Fifth district, contemplates an extension from Atlanta to St. Marys; another, a bill by Representative W. T. Davidson of Putnam, simply provides for a bond issue of $10,000,000 for the extension. The third, a resolution by Representative W. T. Paulk, of Ben Hill, has for its object the purchase of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic road, which would make Brunswick the port terminus.

To carry out either one of the projects would necessitate a bond issue, which could be had only by a constitutional amendment, requiring a ratification by a two-thirds ovte of the people of the state.

Before the senate committee on Western and Atlantic railroad Wednesday morning Judge Sweat made a vigorous speech in favor of his resolution. After pointing out that there is an available water front of about two miles at St. Marys where wharves could be built and vessels accommodated drawing upwards of twenty feet at low tide, Judge Sweat said, in part:

JUDGE SWEAT'S SPEECH.

"The town of St. Marys has a site upon which a great city could be built. Its health and natural advantages generally are unsurpassed. While the Atlantic, Waycross and Northern Railroad company owns and operates a small road about twelve miles from St. Marys to Kingsland on the Seaboard Air Line, nd own and control most of the port facilities, it is anxious to transfer the same upon reasonable terms to the state, provided the Western and Atlantic railroad is extended to that point. It is understood that the Southern Railroad company would also let the state have its line, 105 miles in length, from Atlanta to Fort Valley. The distance between Fort Valley and Kingsland is approximately 200 miles. A line filling this gap running along what is known as the "Ridge Route" could be very cheaply built by the state with a portion of its felony convicts. To extend the road from St. Marys to Jacksonville, Fla., the gateway and railroad center of Florida, would only require the building of about thirty-two miles of road.

"A. B. & A. PURCHASE UNWISE."

So far as the purchase by the state of the A. B. & A. road is concerned, it would be unwise. It will no doubt be sold as a whole and in order, therefore, for the state to get the line from Atlanta to Brunswick it would have to buy that expensive part of the system extending to Birmingham, Ala., which is out of the question. Moreover, we now have the benefit of the A. B. & A. and for a less amount the state could give us a new line to St. Marys thereby developing that splendid section through which it would run.

"It is believed the port of St. Marys worth at least 62,500,000, is within the reach of the state of Georgia. No other state in the south has such an opportunity to open a gateway to the sea and Panama canal to the rest of the whole world as the state of Georgia. The benefits to be derived and distributed among all the people of the state are beyond calculation."

Quick, Easy and Positive Cure for All Foot Torture

The following is said to be the surest and quickest cure known to science for all foot ailments: "Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off. It gives immediate relief for sore bunions, sweaty, smelly and aching feet. PREACHERS INDORSE SCHOOL BIBLE BILL

Methodists and Baptists Adopt Resolutions and "Junior Order" Adds Support

The issue was drawn Wednesday morning over the proposed measure which would require the Bible to be read in all public schools supported by the state.

The Methodist ministers of Atlanta, by formal resolution of their association at a called meeting, indorsed the measure emphatically, asserting that "this is a Christian country," and that "Anglo-American civilization is founded on the English Bible."

The Baptist ministers of the city, by formal vote of their conference, indorsed it with the qualification that due provision should be made for "excusing any children from the hearing thereof whose parents so request."

The Junior Order of United American Mechanics, in session in Atlanta Tuesday night, added its indorsement.

The bill now is pending in the senate, having been reported favorably by the senate committee on education; but the senate has referred it back to the committee for further discussion, owing to pronounced opposition on religious grounds. The committee will hold another hearing Friday morning at 9 o'clock in the senate chamber.

The Methodist meeting Wednesday was held in Wesley Memorial church, with Dr. W. P. Lovejoy presiding.

The following committee was appointed by the Methodist ministers to attend the hearing of the senate committee: Dr. W. P. Lovejoy, presiding elder of the Atlanta district; Dr. H. M. DuBose and Dr. C. O. Jones.

CONLEY NEGRO MAY BE INDICTED OVER DORSEY'S PROTEST

said that Frank killed the girl and that he helped dispose of her body, he was cross-examined for hours at a time, the solicitor and the detectives making themselves thoroughly familiar with the case.

Then he was allowed to rest for several weeks, but now, almost on the eve of the Frank trial, the officers have commenced more vigorously than ever their cross-examination, and this occasioned the rumor that Conley has again changed his story, or that the detectives are expecting still another confession.

Solicitor Dorsey on Tuesday examined a new witness, a young woman, who made a lengthy statement, which the state considers of importance. The woman's story had no direct bearing on the crime, it is said, and can only be used in event the defense puts Frank's character in issue.

Preparations for the Frank trial, which will be held in the court room on the first floor of the old city hall, are now being made by Deputy Plennie Minor and other court attaches.

When the sweating of Conley was concluded shortly before 2 o'clock, it developed that Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey had been present at the questioning. He left the room in company with City Detectives Stares and Campbell, all of whom declined to give any intimation of what had transpired behind the closed doors. The negro was immediately led back to his cell.

MAN ONCE PARDONED BY WOODWARD IS SENTENCED

Judge Broyles Gives Griff Freeman 29 Days—Woman "Turned Him Up"

"You are one of the worst blind tigers that Atlanta ever knew. I have succeeded in driving most of the other notorious whisky sellers out of business, but you have managed to dodge every time. Now I think the evidence is clear against tyou ,and that you will be convicted. I hope you are convicted."

That was Recorder Broyles' opinion of Griff Freeman, 374 West North avenue, expressed to Freeman in recorder's court Wednesday morning. The recorder had just sentenced Freeman to twenty-nine days in the city stockade and bound him over in five distinct cases for selling liquor, assessing a bond of $1,000 in each case. Freeman was out under a $1,000 bond when he was arrested on the new charges, he having carried a previous conviction up from the recorder's court.

Freeman was pardoned some six weeks ago by Mayor Woodward from a sentence in the stockade, after the higher courts of the state had upheld Recorder Boryles' conviction of him and ordered that he must serve his sentence. The mayor stated as the reason for his clemency that Freeman was physically unable to serve in the stockade.

Mrs. aDisy Backus, of 8 Ethel street, who stated that her husband had been squandering all of his money for Freeman's blind tiger whisky, was the star witness against him. It was she who "turned up" the man's operations to the police, helping Moon and Adams, plain clothes officers, to round up their evidence and inducing numerous witnesses to testify against Freeman. Several witnesses testified, at her instance, that they had bought liquor from Freeman at various times.

One witness, B. B. Bennett, swore that he had been buying whisky from Freeman at intervals during the past seven years.

If Freeman succeeds in giving bond in the five new cases against him, his total bail will stand at $6,000.

PENSION FUND STARTED FOR BAPTIST PREACHERS

George M. Brown Heads Subscription List With a $3,000 Gift

The veteran ministers' fund of the Atlanta Baptist association has just been organized and a contribution of $5,000 made by George M. Brown.

The officers of the fund are W. W. Gaines, president; Rev. A. H. Gordon, vice president, and Rev .A. C. Ward, secretary and treasurer. The other trustees are Dr. C. W. Daniel, Dr. M. G. Campbell, Walker Dunson and George M. Brown.

The rules of the fund provide that any minister or missionary who has reached the age of sixty years, and who has been in service for the period of twenty-five years, five years of which period of service having been within the bounds of the Atlanta association shall be eligible to receive a pension from the fund. A similar provision is made for the widow of such deceased minister or missionary, and, after the death of such widow, for the unmarried daughters until they reach the age of twenty-five years.

Only the income of the fund is to be used in paying pensions, the principal amount at no time to be encroached upon.

It is believed that this fund will grow; that many people will make contributions to it. No class of persons can make a stronger appeal to the charitably inclined than those veterans of the Cross who, having given their lives not to money-getting, but to the service of God and humanity, in their old age find themselves without adequate support.

On the whole present tour of duty has been one with which the officers of the regiment are as well pleased as could be hoped. The men as well as the officers have been taught many things they could never learn in a city, and Colonel Pomeroy and Captain Kimbrough felt that the regifent is fully 25 per cent more efficient today than when they reached the island.

Protection That Is Sorely Needed.

Innocent Moses Primrose who bartered away a good horse for a bushel of worthless green spectacles with tortoise shell rims was no more gullible than many honest folk of the present time who fall into the wiles of our "Quick-Rich Wallingfords." Indeed, it has been conservatively reckoned that the people of Georgia blandly surrender five million dollars a year to the promoters of flimsy or fraudulent investment schemes. It is not to be inferred that the persons thus deceived are unusually simple or venturesome, for, in this as in other instances the tempter often appears in a guise so angel-like as to dupe the very elect. The shrewdest business men are not infrequently the easiest prey to wild-cat devices; even J. Pierpont Morgan, seasoned and masterful financier though he was, is said to have purchased stock in a number of visionary concerns.

The public needs protection against such snares, especially in Georgia, which now has no law to this effect and which naturally, therefore, has become an inviting field for all manner of financial adventures. In justice to honest business interests, if not as a shield to the rank and file of the unwary, an adequate law of this kind should be enacted. Georgia, like the South at large, is developing by leaps and bounds. Scores of thoroughly safe and legitimate enterprises call for promotion. But if irresponsible or merely bubbling affairs are permitted to continue unchecked, rightful and trustworthy undertakings will fall under the shadow of suspicion; and furthermore properly conducted interests will suffer at the hands of unscrupulous rivalry.

A measure popularly known as "the Blue Sky bill" is now before the Legislature, having been favorably reported by the House committee to which it was referred. Its purpose is to prevent such conditions as those we have described. Its enactment and enforcement will mean a saving of hundreds of thousands or, perhaps, millions of dollars annually to the people of this State and the protection of legitimate interests. This bill has the hearty indorsement of business men and commercial bodies throughout the State. It is in line with the progressive action of other Legislatures in various parts of the Union. Let it be made a law at the present session of our General Assembly.

The young man who is looking for promotion should consult a promoter.

A Victory for Arbitration

It is a matter of keen satisfaction the country over that the employees and officials of the eastern railroads have responded to President Wilson's timely counsel and are now fairly on the way toward a just and quiet settlement of their differences.

This course of action has not only averted a strike that would probably have imposed hardship upon both parties directly concerned and well-nigh irreparable injury upon the public, it has also exemplified more luminously perhaps than ever before the power and the righteousness of the arbitration principle.

The White House conference, made possible through the President's initiative, brought together the heads of the railroads and of the labor organization. It opened the way for the constructive influence of sober reasoning and engendered on both sides a spirit of conciliation.

Especially interesting is the fact that it hastened the enactment of the Newlands-Clayton bill, providing for the arbitration of wage disputes in a manner satisfactory to the roads and their employees alike. This measure, which had been pending, was rushed to passage in order to meet this particular emergency.

Arbitration is the fair and economical basis on which all such differences should be adjusted. It conserves the interests of those directly involved in an issue and, what is supremely important, it protects the rights and security of the public, which otherwise is helpless.

A Seasonable Suggestion: Investigate It Promptly.

All questions concerning the future of the Western and Atlantic railroad demand prompt as well as thorough consideration; and especially is this true of the proposal that the State acquire the W. & A. railway as a means of extending its own line to the sea. The A. B. & A. is soon to be sold under foreclosure proceedings. Whether it would be advisable or possible for the State to purchase this property is a matter yet to be determined. But it is essential that the Legislature make all reasonable haste in reaching some definite and well founded conclusion so that, if it sees fit to act favorably on this suggestion, it can act while the opportunity is open.

The House evidently realized the urgency of this matter in fixing as a special order of business for Thursday the Paulk resolution which provides for the appointment of a joint committee from the House and the Senate to investigate in all its aspects the proposed purchase of the A. B. & A. by the State. It is to be hoped that this resolution will be adopted in both branches of the General Assembly and carried speedily into effect, for, it opens a way to the approach and settlement of a question that bears vitally upon the interests of the State railroad and the citizens of Georgia.

As to the wisdom of extending the Western and Atlantic to the sea, there should be no reasonable difference of opinion. Such an extension is, indeed, necessary to the road's continued growth in usefulness and value. Were the State interested merely in the revenue involved, it might rest content with a local line operating, as now, between Atlanta and Chattanooga, though it is evident that in this respect alone a continuous line to the coast would be far more profitable. There is a much larger issue to be considered, however, than that of revenue; it is the all important issue of fair and equable freight rates. Under present conditions, the Western and *Atlantic has no determining influence on this prob*lem but, if it were extended to the ocean, thereby linking interior towns directly to a port and affording their shippers the advantage of water routes to and from the east, it would become the natural and permanent arbiter of our transportation rates.

More than three-quarters of a century ago the Georgia Legislature that conceived and planned the Western and Atlantic railroad realized the importance of this particular idea, for, the act of December the twenty-first, 1836, under which the road's construction was begun, contemplated its ultimate extension to the sea; and it was only because of impeding circumstances that this logical plan was suspended. The time has come when Georgians of today should carry to completion their forefather's masterly design; and they are admonished to do so by conditions which in that earlier time did not exist and could but dimly have been foreseen.

The proposed purchase of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railway suggests one means to that end. Whether it is the best means, whether it is acceptable or even feasible remains to be determined but it is certainly worth considering. If the State can acquire this property on advantageous terms, it will be able to fulfill without further delay the important duty of completing the Western and Atlantic plan; *it will own a railroad system incom*parably more valuable and more influential than the line it now possesses; and Georgians through all generations to come will have cause to bless the wisdom and workmanly patriotism of the men who brought this great enterprise to pass.

The Paulk resolution, which the House is to consider on Thursday, in no wise commits the Legislature to any action or policy in this regard. It simply provides for a thorough inquiry into a proposition which, to say the least, is very seasonable and interesting and which may turn out to be a magnificent opportunity. It is primarily important that such an investigation begin at the earliest possible moment, for, as we have said, the A. B. & A. is to be sold in the near future and should the Legislature look favorably upon the suggested purchase of this property, it should be in a position to act with the least possible delay.

Any transaction of this kind would, of course, require a constitutional amendment and the issuance of bonds, a matter that could not even be submitted to the voters until the general election, a year from next autumn. But if the Legislature is convinced of the advisability of such a deal, the State could probably arrange with the purchasers at the sale of the A. B. & A. for a future acceptance of the State's bonds. Thus the proposition could be held pending until it could be submitted to the people.

In order that this may be done, however, it is essential first of all that the Legislature reach a well considered verdict of its own, and to that end it should institute a prompt and careful investigation of the subject in its entirety. The Paulk resolution in the House and a similar resolution by Senator Foster in the Senate have been offered with this object in view. It is much to be hoped that they will be adopted in satisfactory form and carried expeditiously into effect.

PROGRESS AT PANAMA

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

So rapidly has the work on the Panama canal moved forward to completion that all but eleven of the fifty miles of the canal are under water, and all but three miles of the eleven yet in the dry are completed, so far as the taking out of material is concerned. The three miles where excavation still is going on are to be found just above the Pedro Miguel lock and below the Miraflores locks—less than two miles in Culebra cut and a little more than one mile in the sea level channel below Miraflores. By the time the work on those three miles of the channel *is completed the water in the Ga*tun lake will have reached a level which will give thirty-nine feet of water in Culebra cut, enough to float the biggest ship that now sails the seas toward Panama. Had it not been for unexpected trouble with the slides at Culebra and Cucaracha the canal would have been ready for the water before the water was ready for the canal. As far back as last May the resident engineer in Culebra cut, Mr. Zinn, announced that there was a channel through the cut which could accommodate a ship of thirty feet draft. But a few days after he made this announcement Cucaracha slide began to play its old trick of flowing down the mountain side like a glacier. It spread all the way across the cut and turned its "toe" skyward up the bank on the other side. As if this were not enough, no sooner had the engineers reformed their line of battle and begun to undo the damage Cucaracha had done until they were exposed to a flank attack by a great break in the west bank 1,000 yards or more north of Cucaracha. Between the two there were some rather anxious moments for the engineers. One afternoon a friend happened into Colonel Goethals' office to inquire how the work was progressing. "It makes one feel homesick," he replied, "to see how persistent these slides are. Cucaracha has ceased to bother me a great deal; this morning I tramped all over it, and found that about all that can slide is sliding. I saw the basalt rock peeping through at many places, and that means that the end is in sight so far as Cucaracha is concerned. But over on the west bank a crevasse has opened up, which, if it proves as bad as it may prove, will add a large quantity to the material to be taken out. But at their worst the slides afford no reason why we shall not have the canal full of water this fall—rather, they afford additional reason why we should have it full.

* * * *

"We will have seventy-nine feet of water available in Gatun lake by October," he continued, "and by allowing it to come into the cut we will at once get the benefit of the hydrostatic pressure of the water, which will help to hold back and further slides that might otherwise develop. In addition to this, we will be able to concentrate the big dredges on the slides, and some of these dredges can do the work of eight steam shovels and sixteen dirt trains. This will permit us to remove the material brought in by the slides much more rapidly, at the same time allowing us to remove them at less than half the present cost. Every engineering consideration calls for the turning in of the water in the fall, and every effort will be made to do so. And it may be added that there will be no physical consid*eration that can prevent it, so far as engineering* foresight can assure this.

* * * *

"There is another consideration that calls for our best efforts to get water into the canal the coming fall. If we should not do so we will have to let the water brought down by the Chagres river during the present rainy season run on to the sea. Then we would, a month or so later, have a completed canal with its highest part high and dry, and be compelled to wait another full year for water to fill it. In the meantime we would lose the use of a $375,000,000 investment for a year; we would lose all the advantage that has resulted from the faithful work of a faithful army in hastening the date of completion; and further than that, we would postpone the date of the official opening withoute any training in the handling of ships, without any experience in meeting the problems of operation, and with a year of lost time in molding a permanent organization for the operation of the big waterway. I feel that it is almost vital that we shall get the water in this fall, and so that the canal army is working—with no difficulties ahead of them, so far as engineering considerations go, to prevent its achievement."

* * * *

The assertion of the chief engineer that the water ought to be turned in next fall, and that it will help to solve the problem of the slides, is borne out by the testimony of Colonel Du Bose Gaillard, who is in immediate charge of the work in Culebra cut, when he last appeared before the house appropriations committee. He said then that one of the ways to combat slides into the cut would be to get the water in as soon as possible, and that its outward pressure would tend to maintain an equilibrium and, therefore, to check the flow of earth into the big ditch.

* * * *

Every preparation is now going forward to turn the water into Culebra cut in October. Big pipe lines are being laid through which the dredges will pump the material so far out into the jungle that it cannot find its way back into the canal. The work on the lock gates in the unbuilt chambers at Miraflores is being hastened by October 1 as the latest. The railroad trestle across the canal at the south end of Culebra cut has been constructed so that a section can be taken out to permit the Pacific dredges to pass up into the slide region. Furthermore, a hydraulic sluicing plant has been put into commission back of Cucaracha slide to attack it by hydraulic methods from the rear, and that plant is now in operation. Cucaracha slide reaches so far away from the cut that part of it slopes over into another valley, and this is being sluiced away.

* * * *

The method by which Culebra cut will be filled with wateer is interesting. A dike built across the north end of the cut at Gamboa now prevents any of the waters of the Chagres river, impounded in Gatun lake, from flowing into the nine-mile stretch of the cut. When they get ready to blow out this dike they cannot merely blow it out and let a great rush of waters sweep through the cut to its end at Pedro Miguel, for that would carry devastation in its wake. Rather, they will probably build a small spillway in the dike, and water will be admitted slowly through this until the water in the cut reaches the same level as the water on the other side of the dike. This process may be aided by large syphons and pumps, and also by a few small rivers.

* * * *

Now that the opening the canal to traffic is only a few short months away, Colonel Goethals is particularly anxious that the work of perfecting a permanent organization shall be taken up and completed. One by one the best men on the isthmus are leaving to enter private employment. With no permanent head to assure them of positions under the permanent organization, there is nothing left for them to do but to go when the opportunity presents itself. The result is that the force gradually is disintegrating as the work moves on to completion, and the men are laid off here and there. The canal army is the cream of a ten-year process of elimination, and it is of prime importance that all the advantage of this skimming process be not lost to the United States.

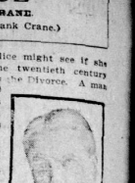
DIVORCE

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)



One of the queerest things Alice might see if she came to this Wonderland of the twentieth century would be the institution known as the Divorce. A man and woman cannot get married unless they are agreed. But it is exactly when they agree together to separate that the law refuses to grant them a divorce.

The consequence is that they usually connive at making their case appear as if one party were contending to be free and the other party to remain tied. This legal vaudeville seems an odd way of accomplishing a very desirable end, the disjoining of two who are aweary of each other.

Provided equitable arrangements can be made to protect the interests of all parties, as far as may be possible, and provided especially that the welfare of the children be safeguarded, why in the world cannot two people who are spoiling each other's lives be allowed to go their separate ways in peace?

I believe wholly in monogamy and that "the supreme affection between two" is the ideal of sex relationship; but I think altogether too much of marriage to believe in continuing a tie that has become a destructive, irritating and corroding condition.

They are telling the story now in Paris of a certain countess who got a lawyer, an old friend of the family, upon the street one day. After chatting a moment he inquired where she was now living.

"Why, at home, of course!"

"Since your divorce?"

"Divorce? What do you mean?"

The counselor then told her that he had read of the divorce proceedings her husband had instituted against her, and advised her to look into the matter.

She was astounded. Her home life had been ideal, her husband admirable. She hastened to her house, only to find her husband had gone. She then learned that he had actually divorced her without her knowing it, by having her sign papers which, foolishly, she never read, as he explained that they were mere legal technicalities connected with her money, of which he had charge.

Shortly afterward he married a wealthy woman.

This kind of scoundrelism can get by the law, but two honest people who want to part legally and without chicane are reprimanded for collusion and sent back to annoy each other.

Since divorces are allowed, why not have them granted in a decent, deliberate, honorable way, instead of by an unworthy legal comedy?

And why is not mutual consent about the best reason in the world for divorce, without dragging in a lot of scandal to besmirch all persons concerned in order to establish the sacred inviolability of marriage?

Why must divorce, if it be necessary and legal, be a dirty war to the knife?

Certain moralists these days are advocating the marriage of reason, of eugenics and intelligence. Perhaps that is the better way; but if one may marry without love, why may not one be divorced without hate?

The Journal's Letter Box

Editor The Journal:

If what the kindergarten does for children were generally understood the legislature could not be prevented by force from passing the kindergarten bill. As long as it has been since Froebel originated the "child garden" his system of "child culture" is yet a new movement as far as a complete comprehension of its psychology by the public at large is concerned.

"Children are naturally destructive." How often we hear that! Children are pent-up dynamos. Their energies go to waste. The kindergarten turns the child's energy into constructive channels. It teaches the habit of construction, the habit of order. A kindergarten child is not likely to "tear things to pieces for fun." He knows that it takes work and care to make things.

It imparts the co-operative spirit. To an extent that the mother cannot, the kindergarten develops in the child the community spirit. Through his play there is ingrained into him a sense of his responsibilities as a social factor.

Watch the kindergarten games and get their meaning. Watch the children with linked hands go round and round, to the measure of some little song. Jack, in mischief, treads on Jane's toes or pinches her fingers; or Polly, for fun, pushes her partner out of line. The song dies; the merry circle stands still. Jack or Polly, as the case may be, sees how his or her departure from the rule—violation of law and order—has interrupted the play; has interfered not only with his or her pleasures, but with the pleasures of the body politic. And sees that as an evil. Not as, "Well, if I'm not having a good time, nobody else is!"

The habit of thought. "If I want to do well, I must help my neighbor to do well," is ingrained; and "If my neighbor does well, that help me, too." I am not sure that the competitive spirit as our schools for older children develop it, is truly moral. The standard should be: "Not so much to excel my other fellow, but to do my best and to help him do his."

The thoroughly trained kindergarten child is not likely to develop into a grafter. While he is plastic, it is ingrained into him that he is part of a whole; that when he misteps he brings about a chain of troubles; that his fellow's failure or misfortune is, in a measure, his failure and misfortune, and is something to be prevented.

The constructive as opposed to the destructive habit; the co-operative rather than the competitive; the responsibility of the individual to the community and of the community to the individual—these seem to me *to be some of the things which the kindergarten im*parts to the child through its play while the child is plastic, and these things form the true basis of high citizenship.

It might help a lot of us grown-ups to go through kindergarten.

Unfair to Cotton Interests

(New York Journal of Commerce.)

The tariff bill is to come before the senate with the approval of the Democratic "conference" and the finance committee with the Clarke amendment imposing a prohibitive tax upon contracts for the sale of cotton for future delivery buried in its vitals. The declared policy of the Democratic party is for a tariff for revenue only, to be reached without changes which will injure or destroy any legitimate industry. There could be no grosser violation of the essential principle of such a policy than this offspring of ignorance and prejudice. It seems to be useless for traders on the cotton exchanges, who thoroughly understand the effect of such a legislative atrocity, to protest. They are treated by the Clarke breed of statesmen as no better than gamblers or buccaneers of trade.

The injury to be done will affect the manufacturers and the planters quite as seriously as the dealers in this important American product, the most important in our trade with foreign countries. The manufacturers are making themselves heard and those of the south as loudly as those of the north. It is time the planters were sufficiently aroused to realize that they will be the chief sufferers if the market processes which determine and make stable the price of this staple of their section is to be upset.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS CAMPING AT LAKEWOOD

Young Men May Work in Town and Sleep in the Country

The innovation of a camp for the members of a young men's Sunday school class, the camp to be repeated each summer, was instituted Tuesday evening by the Pilgrim class of Central Congregational church. The class opened its camp at Lakewood with a celebration at which the young ladies of Averill Bible class in the same school were guests. Dr. G. L. Hanscom, pastor of the church; Mrs. Hanscom, teacher of the Pilgrim class, and Arthur Macduff, of Jacksonville, Fla., the generous donor of the camp's entire equipment, were the guests of honor at the opening.

Six tents have been erected on the top of a hill at Lakewood, near the big ball ground. The tents are arranged in a semi-circle, with room left in the middle of the arc for the big assembly tent that is to be raised there later. A flag pole forty feet high has been planted in front of the semi-circle. Cots, blankets, camp chairs, basins, pails, and all other furnishings have been installed in the dwelling tents; and complete kitchen equipment and all of the paraphernalia for dining have been put in place. Wednesday was to mark the actual beginning of routine in the camp. The negro cook, to officiate also as the watchman during absence of the campers at their work in the city, took up the functions of his office Wednesday morning. All of the equipment was donated by Mr. Macduff and is the property of the class. It will be stored each winter and brought out for service again each summer as long as it endures.

ROOM FOR TWELVE

There is room in the camp for just twelve young men, two to a tent, without the assembly tent. In that the accommodations are to be held in reserve for visiting class members who wish to spend one night in camp. In that, too, the class members are to assemble, particularly on rainy evenings, for their games, reading, etc. The camp is intended primarily to give opportunity for an outing to each member who desires it. Several of the campers already have given up for the remainder of the summer their rooms in the city and expect to remain in camp until the tents are struck this fall. The expenses of the camp will be prorated among those who enjoy its privileges. Each of the campers will continue without interruption at his daily work in the city, the car line affording as easy access as from any other part of town.

CELEBRATION OPENS CAMP

The celebration with which the camp was opened Tuesday evening began with a big bonfire in which corn and potatoes were roasted. Watermelons and other accessories of a picnic supper were served. Supper was followed by speeches. G. Starr Peck, former president of the class, told the history of plans for the camp and expressed the members' thanks to Mr. Macduff for his generosity. The class voted to make Mr. Macduff an honorary life member of its organization. Mr. Macduff spoke briefly, and was followed by Dr. Hanscom and Mrs. Hanscom. Class songs and class yells made the night lively around camp for a while after the speeches. The evening closed with devotional exercises. The classes joined in singing "Onward Christian Soldiers;" the twenty-third Psalm was recited in chorus; Dr. Hanscom led in prayer; and "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung, concluding the service.

It is planned to make the camp a summer rendezvous for all members of the class. Only two rules must be followed: first, all of the campers must attend Sunday school in town each Sunday morning, and stay to church if they can; and second, the campers must hold a devotional exercise each evening before they "turn in" for the night.

GEORGIA AND HER POLITICS

Little Likelihood that Legislature Will Pass Tax Equalization Measure

Unless Governor Slaton takes a hand there is little promise that the legislature will at this session pass a tax equalization law. Leaders of the house entertain widely divergent views as to the kind of legislation desired, and it seems impossible for them to reconcile these views.

The whole question at issue is whether there shall be a state board of tax equalizers in addition to county boards. Some of those who have given the tax problem the most earnest study and consideration declare that without a state board there can be no tax equalization; that any bill passed otherwise will prove to be nothing more nor less than a farce.

On the other hand, there are representatives who have given just as much study to the subject who insist that there should be no state board; that if one is created it will have such arbitrary powers as to work hardship upon the taxpayers and that the authority to fix tax valuations should be bestowed upon county boards who are familiar with local conditions.

Those who advocate both a state board and county boards call attention to the fact that in 1890 the system of county boards of tax equalizers was tried out and found to be so unsatisfactory that they was repealed.

With majority and minority reports from the ways and means committee, the fight will be carried to the floor of the house, where one or both bills proposed will, without doubt, be shot to pieces with amendments.

Both sides are seeking to enlist the support and influence of the governor, and unless he uses his good offices to bring about harmony, there appears to be little hope for genuine tax revision at this session.

Georgia Solons to Visit Carmichael's Fishing Club.

Carmichael's Fishing club, where Georgia's general assembly is to be tendered a real southern babecue by the citizens of Augusta, is on what is known as the Savannah road, about seven and a half miles from the city. Its membership is composed of the men foremost in the commercial, industrial, business and professional life of Augusta and the club itself has been the scene of many a notable gathering.

It was at this club that ex-President William H. Taft was entertained. John D. Rockefeller has dined there and fished in the placid waters of the lake, and Vincent Astor, son of the late John Jacob Astor, one of the heroes of the Titanic, has also been a guest.

The solons will be driven there in automobiles following the inspection of the property of the state medical college, and every man will be seated in the large dining pavilion or at tables erected under the trees on the water front.

Hardeman to Invoke House Rule Limiting Privileges of Floor.

Representative R. N. Hardeman, of Jefferson, announced Wednesday morning that for the remainder of the session of the legislature he would insist upon the enforcement of house rule 175 relative to the privileges of the floor.

Mr. Hardeman will do this, he says, in order to facilitate business and eliminate disorder and confusion in the house. Rule 175 limits the privilege of the floor to members of the house and senate, ex-presiding officers of the two bodies, judges of the supreme, appellate and superior courts in actual commission, federal judges, members of congress, members of the United States senate, solicitors general in actual commission and to newspaper men who are engaged in covering the proceedings of the house for their papers.

Congressional Race in Sixth District Already Under Way.

Two of last year's candidates for congress in the Sixth district have announced positively that they will be in the race again in the 1914 primary. They are J. Walter Wise, of Fayetteville, and John R. Cooper, of Macon.

Judge Charles L. Bartlett, of Macon, who won the contest last fall and who represented the Sixth district for eighteen years, has made no announcement concerning his plans, therefore it is not known whether he will again seek re-election.

Representative J. J. Harris May Make Congressional Race.

In the event that Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick, of the Tenth district, does not seek re-election, J. J. Harris, of Sandersville, representative in the legislature from Washington county, may be a candidate for congressional honors.

Mr. Harris is a close personal and political friend of Congressman Hardwick, and actively assisted in the management of the latter's recent campaigns. He is the city attorney for Sandersville and is one of the ablest and best known young lawyers in the state. In the legislature he is known as a man of strong mind and many talents.

Secretary of State Cook Is Proud Possessor of a Handsome New Desk.

Secretary of State Philip Cook now sits behind a massive new flat-top desk. This modern piece of furniture was installed in the secretary's office a day or two ago and took the place of an old pine desk which has done service for all the secretaries of state during the past seventy years.

The old desk was first used by Colonel Nathan Barnett when the capitol was at Milledgeville. Owing to its history and associations, Secretary Cook regretted to set it aside, but it was so far out of date that it did not meet the requirements of the office. However, it has been given a place of honor in a corner of the state department, and will be preserved as a relic.

PRESCRIBE WEIGHT AND SIZE OF COTTON BALE

Cotton Buyers and Manufacturers Want Bales Just Their Way

A standard minimum weight for bales of cotton, bought by its members, and standard maximum dimensions of those bales, were fixed by the North Georgia Cotton Buyers' and Manufacturers' association, Tuesday at noon in the Hotel Ansley.

It was decided that no bale of cotton bought by the members of the association should weigh less than 400 pounds, and that bales falling below the minimum weight should be penalized 50 cents. The maximum dimensions of bales were fixed at 27 by 54 inches, with a penalty of $1 for bales exceeding them.

J. D. Moss, of Athens, president of the association, directed the meeting. Some fifty other members and officers of the association were present.

BARROW COUNTY SURE TO WIN, BELIEVE ADVOCATES

Hearing on New County Before Senate Committee. Winder Citizens Present

Advocates of the new county of Barrow scored a point Tuesday afternoon before the senate committee on constitutional amendments when the time for the committee hearing on the proposition was set for Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Opponents of this new county worked hard to have the hearing fixed for next Tuesday.

Between two and three hundred citizens of Winder and the territory to be embraced in Barrow county are in Atlanta to appear before the committee. In this delegation are many ladies, who are quite enthusiastic for the creation of the new county.

Indications are that the senate committee on constitutional amendments will recommend the passage of the Barrow county bill. The fact that this measure has already passed the house by a good majority will doubtless operate to its advantage in the senate, notwithstanding those who are fighting the bill are leaving no stone unturned to bring about its defeat.

Friends of Barrow county declare that they have checked up the members of the senate and that they are satisfied the creating bill will pass with votes to spare.

NEW RAILWAY MAIL SUPERINTENDENT HERE

CHAMBER WILL SURVEY ATLANTA MILK SUPPLY

Willl Engage Dr. Chas. E. North, Famous Expert of New York

Arrangements in line with the suggestion by the milk investigating committee of the chamber of commerce that a survey of Atlanta's milk supply be made by an expert, will be made at an early date at a joint meeting of the committee and the directors of the chamber.

At the same meeting Dr. Peter F. Bahnsen, state veternarian, described the fight that the state department of agriculture has been making upon tuberculosis among cows. Even yet, said he, a big part of the state's daily milk supply comes from tuberculous cows.

It will be necessary to raise funds for paying the expenses of the proposed survey, and this the chamber will undertake to do. The committee recommended that Dr. Charles E. North, sanitarian of New York city, be engaged for the survey. Dr. Edgar Pauliin, president of the Fulton County Medical society, recommended that an Atlanta man, Dr. John Funke, be chosen for the work, declaring that Dr. Funke already is conversant with milk supply conditions here because he has been engaged in an investigation of them.

FAVORABLE REPORT FOR PROBE OF BOOK PRICES

Speedy Passage of McCrory Resolution, Asking Commission, Now Expected

Favorable report upon the McCrory resolution to raise a commission for the purpose of investigating the prices of school books in Georgia as contrasted with the prices elsewhere, was voted Wednesday morning by the house committee on education.

The resolution was reported back to the house later in the morning with the recommendation that it be passed.

Under the McCrory resolution, upon which the house has yet to act and which the senate has not considered yet, the commission will consist of the governor, the state superintendent of schools, three members from the house to be named by the speaker, and two members from the senate to be named by the president of that body.

Report by the commission to the present session of the legislature is directed by the resolution, unless it cannot complete its work in time. In the event ad interim sessions are necessary, the members will be allowed $4 a day and their expenses.

What Anne Ritten-house Says

It is difficult to make the statement without an explanation that blouses and skirts that do not match are worn together.

One's mind instantly thinks of a pale blue satin blouse with a dark blue serge skirt, or a pink linen blouse with a brown ratine skirt. It is for this reason that this statement requires much explanation. The fashion is here, but every woman does not know how to manage it.

To begin at the beginning, it may be safe to say that white or cream blouses made of transparent fabric are the ones preferred, and that the skirt is of black in a soft fabric.

Starting out on this basis, one can wander a bit into by-paths that allow freedom, but there is always trouble in by-paths unless one has a clear head and sound judgment.

The fashion here is comfortable one for the summer. That does not admit of any argument. The main anxiety is what kind of a skirt and what kind of a blouse; and how they should be put together at the waist line. And right here—at the waist line—is the crux of the situation. For it is more than probable that the bhigh, folded sash is the reason for the revival of this fashion which allows decided contrast in skirt and blouse without a coat to soften the effect.

The first hot weather brought out a regiment of women wearing narrow, draped skirts of black satin, plain or brocaded, of crepe de chine, of chiffon taffeta and of the thinnest weave of silk matelassé.

With these skirts were worn negligee waists which go by the general name of Japanese and which droop in sloping lines from the collar bone to the waist. The sash was high and knotted in various individual ways.

A New Kind of Costume.

This is an elaboration of the old idea of a plain dark skirt and a white wash waist. It can hardly be ranked with the other fashion of a trained black skirt and an elaborate colored blouse which was once considered quite good taste for late afternoon or informal evening wear. The idea seems exceedingly absurd to us now, but it was indulgently regarded by all the well-dressed women less than two decades ago.

When the verdict first went out, several years ago, that white skirt waists and short tailored skirts should be worn without the addition of a coat women accepted it gleefully because it sounded cool, but there came a strong reaction away from it, and for five years women have strenuously opposed any idea of going on the street with a contrasting skirt and blouse, minus a wrap.

This has held as a fashion, although it has been disregarded by hundreds of women who did not care whether or not they followed the fashion, and were under the hallucination that wearing out one's tailored skirt and indulging in four white blouses a week was an economy!

Fashion then advocated the one-piece frock, and it has grown in favor so much that it almost ousts the coat suit for three months of summer weather. Just when this fact was settled, comes the new idea of wearing a draped skirt and a white or cream net or lace blouse. Of course, the effect is rather undressed for the street, but that would not bother the heads of the majority of women these days. And yet with all the criticisms that attended the introduction of the modern transparent blouse, it was not worse than the comment that was made when the so-called "peek-a-boo" shirt waist came into the full swing of its glory. After all, we change only in degree and not in the essential.

Sashes Make the Costume.

One could not imagine a successful combination of a transparent light waist and an opaque black skirt without the assistance of an ornamental girdle. In this adjunct to the new costume is the power for grace. Of course, it is overdone in unskilled hands, but when well made it redeems any gown from negligence.

The skirt must be short, for, fortunately, we do not yet allow long skirts on the street, and the blouse may be low in the neck as high collars simply disappeared from the face of the earth in April and only the extremists, or the women with an exceedingly ugly neck, use them. The blouse is fastened down

UNIQUE DISCOVERY MAKES A FORTUNE

The wonderful recipe which was discovered almost by accident after experimenting with a digestive vegetable recommended by a celebrated French doctor, has brought for a young English singer (who had suffered for years with indigestion) a fortune, and has led to carloads of this wonderful article being brought before the American public. Every housewife in England has welcomed this wonderful Waw-Waw into her household because it added a delight to her table when used in cooking, and with soups, salads, hot and cold meats and fish, but at the same time it has had a marvelous digestive effect. Waw-Waw (an obsolete South American word for vegetable) is a purely vegetable sauce.

Success of Former Atlanta Girl

The success which has come to Miss Katherine Glover is but the fulfilment of the prophesies made by the friends of this popular young Atlantian when she left several years ago to pursue her journalistic career in the north.

At the time of her departure Miss Glover was in charge of the woman's department of The Atlanta Journal, and her first work on going to New York was on the newspapers of Gotham.

Later Miss Glover was one of the editors of the Delineator, a position which she gave up to take charge of Today, a new publication which has won its way among the periodicals whose special appeal is made to women.

Today is published in Canton, Ohio, where Miss Glover has made her home, but the growth of the magazine has been such that the offices will be changed to New York, and will be under the direction of Miss Glover.

While it is no matter of surprise to the friends who knew her, it is a satisfaction to know that the recognition and compensation which she deserves has come to her, for in achievement and success she is one of the number of southern girls who have made good in the competitive fields of the north.

The Harpist

He has come again, that personification of lazy humor, that plays a harp with such a wonderful facility as to make of the simple mouth instrument a series of songs which bring to the listener pictures of the Mississippi levees, or the docks of southern seaports, where the darkies draw melody from the little harp for the amusement of a circle of black-faced admirers squatting about the cotton bales or watermelons, according to season, ready for shipment. Not that the levees or the docks are the only places where the negro plays the harp. Sometimes he is strolling down the street, his head hunched to one side, while his feet break into shuffling little steps in tune with his music.

Or sometimes it is a freckled-faced little boy who spends his soul in an effort to express the harmony which sings to him in the quiet and which, like all harmony expressed, grows mute and later lifeless.

Britt Wood is a musician and a humorist and his act at the Forsyth this week stands out as a bit of perfection which could well be called art. The welcome he has won must be an assurance, very pleasing, that he has a place all his own in the affection of an Atlanta audience.

I have no doubt they (women) will suffer or suffer that franchise here, before it is extended to all the whites in England. I have been surprised to find how much attention the question attracts and how strong a party favors it in some of the states. If adopted in one state (two years after he wrote this it was established in Wyoming, sooner or later it will become general; for I am not aware of any conclusive argument against women's voting when that privilege is enjoyed by all the men

DEAR GIRLS

Young Mr. Millions came to see me last evening.

Really? You know they say he isn't at all particular where he goes.

THE EVENING STORY

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Werner.)

The Queer One

The clerk came into the private office in a hesitating way, as if not just certain as to the advisability of disturbing his chief. The latter looked up from his desk and asked what the matter might be.

"It's just this, sir: There's a queer sort of fellow out there who is determined to see you. I don't know what to make of him. He says he's come on business of the Grosvenor estate—whatever he may mean by that. I think he's a crank, sir. Shall I send him in?" the harassed man asked.

Forbush hesitated. There's no Grosvenor——. Yes, send him in. A crank is one remove from a genius, and if he comes without a bomb I'll be willing to see him."

"He's the kind that looks as if they carried bombs, sir," was the reply. "But just as you say, sir."

"But just as you say, sir," be a little uneasy. The lean face, the to have nothing to do with a bomb thrower, but Forbush told him to usher the man in.

It was with some curiosity that the lawyer awaited the arrival of an individual who could arouse in his veteran clerk tangible evidence of fear.

The door opened and Forbush saw a small, shrunken man of perhaps 70 years enter. He took the proffered chair and sat silent, eying Forbush. "I am Joseph Kilven," the man said shortly, and waited.

"I am at your service, Mr. Kilven. What may I do for you?"

Kilven stared and Forbush began to be a little uneasy. The lean face, the steady unwavering eyes were but two of the characteristics that made the man "queer." His skin was tightly drawn over his face, so that the veins stood out at the temples. It might have been the face of a reincarnated Pharaoh, or some old monk who had lived his life with only one thought and one aim, and had burned out his soul in pursuit of his goal.

The thin lips turned into speech. "I understand you are attorney for the Grosvenor company. As you are, I have matters to discuss with you." Again came the steady stare. "I have come many miles to see you and at last my end is accomplished and I shall find peace."

Forbush hesitated. "Yes, send him in."

Forbush squirmed uneasily. "My dear sir, I am anxious to be of service to you; but please be brief. My time is costly."

"Yet I must tell my story; I have come many miles"—

"Go ahead, then. I ought to be willing to listen to a story you have come many miles to tell. From where did you say?"

"I didn't say. From South America."

Kilven folded his thin, veined hands. In a monotonous voice he began the story, and Forbush let the cigar between his fingers go dead as he listened. "Twenty years ago," Kilven said, "I walked out of the state prison of this state, determined to do right—to do right, you understand. An hour after my release I was in this city hunting work; and not finding it—an old story, eh?—I reached the point where it was again steal or starve. Never been there? Have you? It's a time you feel that you could take anybody, even a woman, a girl, by the throat and choke them to get money! I wanted something to eat.

"I was hungry. I went to the suburbs. I waited for a local car, and I followed a man up a side street. As I started to strike him, he heard me simply sida: 'I wouldn't.' Something in his voice held me helpless. What it was I don't know. It sounded a little sorrowful. Strange, wasn't it? I could have feled him. Instead, I went home with him. He was Mr. Grosvenor, who first employed you.

"All this is far away from South America and my mission here, you think? Listen. He took me home and fed me, and, listen, he made me sleep in his home that night. He gave me breakfast in the morning. His wife and son and daughter treated me like a friend."

Forbush was startled to see the man rise, knock his fingers, and cry vehemently: "Curse you, Kilven; curse you!" Then he seemed to realize what he was doing and sank back with the muttered words, "I shall find peace."

He folded his lean hands and went on. "Grosvenor took me to his office, and he gave me work as general helper and watchman about the building. I worked there three weeks, and then—and then it happened to hear the cashier say as he put away a small tin box. 'There is twenty thousand dollars.'

"The words clung to me, sung to me, every waking hour, and in the night. I knew it would be easy to get that money from the safe. I had all the long hours of the night in which to work my wish, for I slept in the building.

"And I forgot what he had done for me, and what life would mean to me with him as guide and friend. I forgot my promises—forgot everything. I waited with caution. From another room, I kept watch in the mornings until I saw the combination the cashier used in opening the safe, and one night I got away with the tin box.

"I had already purchased a passage on a tramp steamer that sailed that night. I went down to the dock and waited in the shadow until the loading was finished. As I went up the plank my foot caught on a cleat and I stumbled off into the water, hitting my head against the vessel's side."

The rigid lines of the lean face sagged, but the lips, after a moment's hesitation, went on firmly. "When I became conscious I was in the hold and the steamer was out of the bay. I cried out about the money. They thought I was crazy. I didn't look like a man with such a sum. I swore in fury, but there was nothing to be done.

"I never knew what became of the money. I was told that one of the men who pulled me out kept the box. I do not doubt it. They were thieves and robbers—the vilest bunch of men that ever lived.

"So much, for that. I tell you, sir, there's something that trips the feet of men who do wrong—some time, somewhere, they pay the price as I have paid it!

"I luckily had paid my passage. I reached South America and for twenty years I have been laboring to make up that amount. It has been my one thought, night and day. Often I wanted to stop, but I could not find rest. I have come back with the money."

"I know little of what has passed. I saw from the papers no mention was made of my crime—at least. I found none—and I knew it was in keeping with the great heart of the man who aided me that he would let the matter pass.

"I have suffered. Twenty years ago I was young and strong; now look at me. Yet that suffering has burned out of me the spirit that led me that night. I am free; and I shall be at peace when the money is turned over to the estate of Mr. Grosvenor."

Forbush was puzzled. "The estate of Grosvenor? Do you mean the young Grosvenor?"

"I mean—why, I read in a trade paper that Grosvenor was dead!"

"Grosvenor's son died, but the father is living."

"Living!" Kilven's voice rose in a cry and he jumped to his feet. His face and form seemed to be transfigured with new life.

"Yes," answered Forbush, stirred by the sudden change. "I think he's in one of the offices here now. I'll see."

A few moments later a white-haired man with a serene, kindly face entered. The two men in the office had arisen. Grosvenor looked at Kilven for a moment, then held out his hand in greeting. Kilven caught it in his and bent over it a moment in silence.

"Mr. Grosvenor, I have brought back all the money I stole," Kilven said.

Grosvenor looked at him oddly. "The money?" he repeated.

"Yes, the money I stole from your office twenty years ago." Kilven answered, hoarsely.

A sudden light shone in Grosvenor's eye, and the light softened. "I understand somewhat," he said. "Kilven, you did not steal money; you took the box which contained $20,000 in receipts —just ordinary paper receipts. We couldn't imagine where that box went to, though we tried to connect it with you."

Kilven swayed like a man about to collapse and Grosvenor put his arm over his shoulder. "I'm glad you came back, Joseph. You can put the money to work for yourself or in my business with me. We've got the best years of life ahead of us and we can be jolly good friends." Grosvenor said, anxious to cover his own emotion. "It's all worked out right in the end."

In Memory of Dr. George S. Tigner

If I were asked to "mark the perfect man and behold the upright," I am inclined to believe I would select a man whose life was one so filled with good deeds to the needy, helpless and destitute that these things would show in his everyday life by "sunshine in his soul" and "sunbeams in his face;" a man whose left hand never knew the many deeds of charity and mercy that his right hand did. Such a man was my late good friend, Dr. George S. Tigner; for his life was a career of loving kindnesses towards the human family. A great many former inmates of the Methodist orphans' home at Decatur will ever remember his generosity to them; for as a dentist and professor in the dental college he did all necessary dental work free for them for years. There he was always ready with a smile and words of good cheer for any who were depressed in spirit, for he delighted to do God's will and loved God's people. As one of his friends I wish to place this little flower on his bier, and express my regrets for not doing so while he lived.

May the blessing of the Comforter abide in the hearts of his dear wife, his brothers, sisters and relatives. He was a faithful steward in Trinity church, Atlanta, and I hear made it a rule to give attention to duties of his church in preference to secular affairs. His friends and neighbors miss very much that genial, cordial greeting for which he was famous and beloved. I am thankful that such a man lived amongst us.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS

Peter Rabbit had left the dear old briar patch on the Green Meadows and come up to the Old Pasture because he was lonesome. Every since Old Man Coyote had come to live on the Green Meadows Peter had been afraid to go about as he had always done, and because no one else lived in the old briar patch Peter had grown up so lonely that he couldn't stand it. So one moonlight night he had stolen out and made the long journey to the Old Pasture. Up there he felt sure that he would have nothing to fear from Old Man Coyote or Granny and Reddy Fox. But on the way Peter had been careless and had forgotten to watch out for Hooty the Owl, and Hooty had almost caught him.

All the rest of that night Peter sat under a friendly old bramble bush on the edge of the Old Pasture and nursed the sore places made by the claws of Hooty the Owl. At last jolly, round, red Mr. Sun began to climb up into the blue, blue sky, just as he does every day. Peter looked up at him and he felt sure that Mr. Sun winked at him. Somehow it made him feel better. The fact is, Peter was beginning to feel just a wee bit homesick. It is bad enough to be in a strange place alone, but to be sore and smart and ache, as Peter did, makes that lonesome feeling a whole lot harder to bear. It is dreadful not to have any one to speak to, but to look around and not see a single thing you have ever seen before, my, my, my, it really does give a funny sinking feeling way down inside.

Before that long night was over Peter felt as if his heart had gone way down to his very toes. Yes, sir, that's the way he felt. Every time he moved he cried "Ouch!" He just knew that he was growing more stiff and sore every minute. Then he began to wonder what he should do for something to eat, for he was in a strange place, you remember. And that made him think of all his private little paths through the dear old briar patch, the little paths which he had made all himself and which no one used but himself excepting Danny Meadow Mouse when he came for a visit.

"Perhaps I shall never, never see them again," moaned Peter, and two big tears filled his eyes and were just ready to drop.

It was just then that he looked up and saw jolly, round, red Mr. Sun wink. Peter tried to wink back, and that made the two tears fall. But there were no more tears to follow. You see that wink had made all the difference in the world. Peter's heart had jumped right back where it belonged. Mr. Sun was one of his oldest friends and you know

When trouble comes, a friendly face
Makes bright the very darkest place.

And so, just as he made bright all the Old Pasture Mr. Sun also made bright the dark little corners in Peter's heart, just because he was an old friend. To be sure, Peter was still lonesome, but it was a different kind of lonesomeness. He hadn't anybody to talk to, which is always a dreadful thing to Peter, but he had only to look up to catch a friendly wink, and somehow that not only made him feel better inside, but it seemed to make his aches and smarts better, too.

His Degree

(New York Times.)

A fair graduate was talking with a young man who had been introduced to her after the commencement exercises.

"Well," she sighed happily, "I am an A. B. now. Of course you have a degree?"

"Yes," he replied, "but I am only a B." The fair grad pondered. The degree was puzzling.

"Why, what is that?" she asked.

"Bachelor," he said.

The Reliability of Advertised Articles

A man who is an authority on advertising said recently: "You may have a business without advertising, but you can't have advertising without a business."

Just think of the full significance of that statement to THE JOURNAL reader.

It means that when you see any man advertising regularly in THE JOURNAL he must have something real and genuine to advertise; that he has merchandise of such quality that it meets the needs of his customers, and that he is so sure of the desirability of what he has to offer that he is willing to spend real money to tell people about it. He knows that money spent in advertising in THE JOURNAL is well spent, because he is so sure of his product that his chief problem in selling is to let everyone know what he has to sell.

Knowing this, can you afford to let this valuable information offered you by THE JOURNAL slip by you through your own negligence? Do you not owe it to yourself to keep up to the minute by reading every day the advertising columns of THE JOURNAL.

Play Fourteen Games on Road On This Trip

Team Goes to New Orleans, Memphis, Montgomery and Mobile—Two of the Series With Best in the League

After Wednesday's game with Montgomery the Atlanta team hits the road for a fourteen-game trip, playing in New Orleans, Memphis, Montgomery and Mobile before returning home. There are several postponed games on the trip and as two of the series are with the clubs in the first division, the trip is one of vital importance.

The Cracker club right now is in the thick of the fight and stands a good chance of taking first place. On the road the club has always been good, and if Bill Smith's men can just come through with a creditable showing on the hike through the wilds of the southern division all will be rosy for a record spurt upon the long home stay during August.

In New Orleans the team should not find much heated opposition. The Pelican bunch has been going poorly all season and right now is no stronger than a month ago. Four games are scheduled for Pelicanville. After that the club moves over to Memphis for three battles. On the last trip Memphis made to Atlanta the Crackers won only three in a row, and sailing there should not be so hard. The fans in Turtleville have quit cold, and the team is playing listless ball. All of this should make it easy.

It is after the Memphis series that the club begins to strike the real opposition. Montgomery and Mobile are the next two clubs on the list and it is going to take real baseball to get a majority of wins. Three games are scheduled in Montgomery and four in Mobile, and every one counts heavily in the final standing. As all the fans know, these two clubs are fighting it out with Atlanta and a game won or lost means a big shift in the standing.

The club will get back home August 1 for a series and after a short jaunt in the northern end of the circuit the team hits Ponce de Leon park for a long stay. If still in the running at that time it will be a good opportunity to get a lead. On the road trip about to be started, however, is the real time for a spurt.

BUNTS AND BINGLES

BY JULIAN MURPHEY

The more one figures over Pelky's record the more one is inclined to believe that while Arthur may not have had a horseshoe in his glove when he dropped McCarty, as has been suggested, he certainly had one in his corner.

GETTING NEW HURLERS.

To keep right in the race and if possible bring the 1913 pennant to Atlanta the Atlanta club is continually keeping its eyes open with a view of strengthening the pitching staff. The directors are ready and anxious to take on any good hurler who has a chance to strengthen the staff and right now have lines out for several pitchers, any one of which can be pulled upon a moment's notice.

Within the last few days the hurling corps has been going good and it may be that no new flingers are needed right now, but at that it is safest to keep the irons hot so they can be used at any time. There are two good pitchers that can now be landed at any time they are wanted and whenever one of the regular slabbers begin to show bad form a new and better man will be added at once. The one idea of the local directing board is to be right in the race all the time and if buying new players will turn the trick they will be on hand.

Thorpe may have won any number of Olympic events, but a look at him in a decayed New York uniform with his hat cocked over one ear and his hair in his eyes suggests anything but a Greek god.

WORK PITCHERS REGULARLY.

The best tip that can now be handed out is to work the present hurling staff in regular turn. Price, Conzelman, Thompson and Dent are all going as well as could be asked and if this bunch is given enough work they may be able to keep up their end of the game and you know the batters will do their full share.

Often a pitcher needs a lot of work to keep him in shape to do his best work. This is certainly the case with Thompson and Price and the offence they are worked the better they will go. Thompson is a youngster who is use to work and it gets him big fat to sit on the bench too long between games. He is always willing to take his turn and so long as he is going good it will doubtless pay to give him his request to work often.

There is no ball player in the camp more willing to work than Gil Price. He is a glutton for hard duty. He was off a bit in his last game but but this may not happen again in months. He is undeniably a good flinger and with his arm continually working he can puzzle the best of the hitters.

As for Dent and Conzelman they are able to work every fourth day without any danger of hurting their tossing arms. Dent is big and strong while Conzelman takes good care of his arm and is young enough to do a lot of slab duty. They are both winners and to break up the combination by adding new hurlers might prove fatal.

The only difference between the lockers of the big league ball players when they are on the field and Tiffany's show window is a mere matter of the plate glass window.

Wednesday's Battle Gets Away at 3 o'Clock—Grocers Are in Charge of Game—Case to Work for Dobbs

The game today is the last of Atlanta's series with Montgomery, and Case and Thompson will probably do the battery work.

After this game Atlanta will leave for a fourteen-game road trip, and Ponce de Leon will know the Crackers no more for two weeks.

A large crowd of fans are expected, as today is Grocers' day, and the grocers will turn out in full force to give the Crackers a good send off.

The game will be called at 3 in order to allow both teams to catch trains.

Makes Pefect Score In Shooting Match

WILMINGTON, Del., July 16.—Making a perfect score in the 150 targets on the program of the eighth annual eastern handicap shoot, William H. Heer, of Guthrie, Okla., led the field of nearly 300 contestants at the close of the day's events. He broke ninety-nine in a possible hundred Monday, and has an unfinished run of 227 straight breaks to his credit.

The national amateur championship target shot, Bart Lewis, of Auburn, Ill., was high gun among the amateurs, and tied with Charles G. Spencer, a professional, from St. Louis, for second place, with 148 breaks. George L. Lyon, of Durham, N. C., national amateur double-target champion, took second place among the amateurs with 146 breaks.

Mrs. Toppelwein, of San Antonio, Tex., finished with 145 targets broken out of her quota. She has a run of 113 straight. John Phillip Sousa, the band-master, finished with 123 breaks recorded.

Humpty Dumpty sat on the wall; And the Crackers couldn't budge them at all.

Weather Ends Water Races

MUSKEGON, Mich., July 16.—The race of hydroplanes, from Chicago to Detroit, which started July 8, has been called oc by the contestants, by mutual agreement. This was announced by Glenn Martin, one of the aviators, after his return here from Pentwater. Martin said the committee in charge of the cruise had withdrawn the prize money.

"At Pentwater I talked over the situation with Havens, Verplanck and Francis," said Martin, "and we all agreed that as the committee had withdrawn the prize money we would not continue the race. The committee stated the framers of the rules for the contest failed to insert a weather clause and when the elements bothered everything was oc."

READY FOR WORLD TOUR

CHICAGO, July 16.—The round-the-world tour of the Chicago Americans and the New York Nationals became a certainty yesterday when Charles Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, posted a deposit necessary to assure the transportation. The teams will sail from Vancouver, B. C., on November 18, making a stop to the Pacific coast in a special train. Several exhibition games will be played en route.

So far six Giants and six of the White Sox have announced their intention to make the tour. John McGraw, manager of the Giants, has posted a guarantee for twenty-five thousand, and Comiskey for twice that number.

Timely Swats Beat Atlanta

Price Was Good in Every Inning but the Third and Fourth

Elmer Brown came back in good fashion in Tuesday's game and killed Atlanta's chances of drawing any nearer the top of the percentage table. There were just four hits made off his delivery, three of the bunch coming in the ninth inning, and the final count was 7 to 1.

Gil Price tried the "come back" stunt but was not there. It was Montgomery's time to win, and win they did. Price had just two bad innings, the third and fourth, and in these two the Dobbers got enough runs to win.

Aside from the timely hitting of the Elliken crew the third inning the battle was almost featureless. Decidedly the most interesting part of the afternoon's play was the work of Umpires Pat Wright and Jack Kerin. Neither is any better than usual, and you know this is just about as mean a thing as you could say of them.

It was Price's nice work on Knaupp's bunt in the second inning that checked a run-getting rally. The pitcher played the ball to second for a force out in hurry-up fashion.

Cotton Knaupp was certainly "around" at the fielding game. The cotton-topped athlete was always right where the ball was going and robbed more than one player of a hit by spectacular stops and throws. He had just eight assists and two putouts.

Each one of the Montgomery players carried horseshoes in their pockets. They make pickups and stops that have never bfore been attempted. Knaupp, Jantzen and Wares were especially lucky in their grabs of hard hit balls.

Until the ninth inning only one Cracker—Frank Manush—had made anything that looked like a hit off the delivery of E. Brown. He had the whole bunch eating from his hand and when you tame the Atlanta hitters you must have something.

Long's long chase and catch of Breen's foul fly in the fourth inning was one of the few fielding features from an Atlanta standpoint. It took fast legging and good judgment to get this drive.

CHANGES FOR JUST A DAY

The first two teams in the Southern league race increased eneir lead on the other clubs Tuesday. Mobile by defeating Chattanooga and Montgomery by defeating Atlanta. Atlanta is now two and one-half games behind Montgomery and two games behind Mobile.

The Giants are holding their lead of almost 100 points over Philadelphia. There is eight games difference between these clubs. The Giants have won 22 out of the last 23 games.

Eddie Plank was in unbeatable form Tuesday and the Athletics increased their lead over the Naps still further as the Cleveland game was rained out.

Shawkey to Mack

NEW YORK, July 15.—Bob Shawkey, a pitcher of the Baltimore team of the International league, left here last night to join the Philadelphia team of the American league, which plays Wednesday in Chicago. Connie Mack obtains the services of Shawkey under an optional agreement the Athletics' manager made with Baltimore early in the season.

Stahl Ousted From Position As Sox Leader

Difference of Opinion Between the Manager and President Caused Change – Carrigan Now Leads Club

CHICAGO, July 16.—"Jake" Garland Stahl was ousted as manager of the Boston Americans Tuesday by James McAleer, president of the club. Though differences were rumored causes of Stahl's release, both manager and president insisted that the demand of stockholders for a "playing manager" was the motive. Wednesday, Catcher William Carrigan will assume charge of the team.

Stahl's release was unconditional, and he will give up baseball as a business, although retaining his Red Sox stock, devoting his time in the future to his banking business in Chicago. He has *played four games this season, an in*jured foot keeping him out of the field. He managed the team from the bench.

Stahl was grieved apparently at McAleer's decision to release him, and declared he had done his best to sustain the team's reputation as world's champions. To bad luck Stahl attributed the comparatively poor showing of the team this year. In connection with the news of Stahl's release, stories of internal trouble among the "Red Sox" were retold today. Carrigan, the new manager, was among the leaders of the faction which rumor says was against Stahl.

Stahl was induced by McAleer to return to the Boston team and assume the management at the beginning of the 1912 season, soon after McAleer became president.

Stahl said last night that McAleer's action in dropping him was a shock to him; that he did not quit of his own accord.

"I guess the real reason for dismissing me was because the team was going badly," Stahl said.

"Stahl was drawing a big salary and was not able to play because of an injured foot," McAleer said. "It handicapped the team, and I considered a change necessary. I shall pay his salary to the end of the year, as his contract calls for. He was a capable manager last year, and would be now if he were able to play."

New Pitcher For Atlanta

President Callaway received a letter on Wednesday from Charles W. Murphy that Pitcher Lefty Liefield objects to coming to Atlanta, as the team needs a pitcher already and has not refused to dicker with Liefield, they will accept the offer of Clark Griffith to send Left-hander Clark.

Clark was last year in the Northwestern league. With the Vanvoucer club he won 22 and lost 8 games, ranking fourth among the leagues' pitchers. Two of the men who stopped him are now pitching good ball in the big leagues. These pitchers are Strand and James.

Clark will be required to report immediately, and will probably join the team during the New Orleans series.

TY COBB IS SUSPENDED

DETROIT, Mich., July 16.—As a result of his dispute with Umpire Hildebrand, the Philadelphia-Detroit game Monday afternoon, Ty Cobb, star outfielder and champion batsman, has been suspended by the head of the American league. The notice of suspension was received by Manager Jennings just before time for starting Tuesday's game. It came in the forme of a telegram dated Chicago and reading as follows:

"This is to notify you of Cobb's suspension for language used to Hildebrand in Monday's game.

(Signed) "B. Johnson."

The dispute between player and umpire occurred in the ninth inning of Monday's game. Baker, the Athletic's third baseman, hit a liner to short centerfield. Cobb raced in and apparently caught the ball a few inches from the ground, but Hildebrand ruled that the fielder had "trapped" it. Cabb was insistent and the umpire ordered him from the game.

Finish Early Round

KANSAS CITY, July 16.—The preliminary round in singles was finished and the preliminary doubles started in the Missouri valley tennis tournament Tuesday.

COBB VS. JACKSON

There was no change in the batting of Cobb and Jackson on Tuesday, as Cleveland was rained out and Cobb is suspended.

WHITE AND ABEL WILL SHOW UP FOR BIG BOUT

Charlie White and Jake Abel, listed as the principals in the main boxing bout of ten rounds at the auditorium on Friday night, will be in Atlanta within the next twenty-four hours, if apparently reliable parties are to be trusted. The Journal's correspondent in Chicago wires that Whits has already left for Atlanta, and will be here during Wednesday, while Abel's brother, who is a resident of Atlanta, announces that Jake will surely be on hand Thursday.

Now just whether the two boxers will be here cannot be positively announced, but reliable sources state that they are on their way and there is every reason to believe that they will show up. They have both accepted railroad transportation, according to the announcements of the railroad companies, and when they take out their transportation, it is usually a sure sign that they intend making the trip.

Kid Young and Charlie Lee, the two principals in a ten-round match, and Eddie Hanlon and Terry Nelson, the other two principals, are already here on the ground, and will show unless they throw down the contracts they have signed. With mattres this sure it looks as if there will be some real boxing at the auditorium on Friday evening.

The White-Abel match should prove a corking good affair. Both of these boys have repeatedly been tried and found to have the goods and for their to "lay down" would be out of their usual line of work. In fact, it is almost sure that Abel will be right in their working all the while. He is the kind who always gives the public the very best he has and this is class. White, too, is known as a hard working boy, and as he has all to lose and nothing to gain by quitting he will doubtless put up a real scrap.

The boxing tournament is for the benefit of the Fifth Regiment band, the proceeds to go toward purchasing new uniforms. The prices will range from 50 cents to $2.

Motor Events On Wednesday At the 'Drome

Postponement on Tuesday Night Owing to Rain—Seven Mile Race, Longest Yet Held Here, Is Big Feature

Jack Prince has proved the champion of rain bringers. For the second successive time his races at the motordrome have been postponed, and will have to be run off on Wednesday night.

The interest of both riders and fans had been worked up to a high pitch in these races, and it was a regret to all that they had to be postponed. They will, however, be run off immediately this time, much to the gratification of the waiting fans.

The races have now been postponed for so long that Billy Smith, who was to start the Cracker Sweepstakes, will be out of town, and this feature will have to be abandoned, that is the starting part. The sweepstakes will certainly be run, and it will be the biggest race of the evening. Also it will be the longest race yet held.

Morty Graves has had new parts shipped for his motor and they have been installed, and are in fine shape, while McNeil claims his engine is running better than it ever has. Tex Richards is sawing wood and saying nothing.

M'GRAW GAVE HIM LESSONS

Charley McDonald, the Boston Braves third baseman, who is just now leading the National league in hitting, is in a way a protege of John J. McGraw. The Giant chief recommended the slugging youngster to Garry Herrmann, of the Cincinnati Reds, who bought him from the Dallas club of the Texas league and carried him along last year and part of this season. Then George Stallings took the boy at the waiver price on a tip from the newspaper men, following the Giants the last time the New York club was in Boston.

McGraw first saw McDonald a couple of years ago at Martin, the training ground of the Giants, when the third baseman and another member of the Dallas club named Theebo joined the Giants to get into physical condition for the Texas league season. McGraw had three ball clubs playing exhibition games in Texas that season, and he used McDonald and Theebo on one team. He had no permanent place for McDonald himself, but his strong recommendation of the youngster to Herrmann indicated that McDonald had made a good impression on him.

McDonald seems to be another Heinie Zimmerman in point of hitting. In 1911, with the Dallas club, he hit .324 in 144 games, although he displayed no unusual slugging ability with Cincinnati last season.—St. Louis Times.

HOW CLUBS PLAY TODAY

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 16.—Memphis and Nashville will conclude their series here this afternoon, the game being Nashville's last at home for this month. It is probable that Shard's batter selection is Kissinger and Seabough. Nashville's battery will be More and Gibson. The weather is fair and hot.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 16.—The afternoon Birmingham expects to make it seven straight from New Orleans, at the sixth straight victory. The visiting team is disabled and every advantage is being taken by opposing teams of improving standings. Batteries will be Hardgrove and Clifton for Birmingham, and Wilson and Augemier for New Orleans.

CHATTANOOGA, July 16.—Manager Eberfield, of the Chattanooga team, is putting Coveleskie and Street against Cavet and Schmidt in the final game of the series with Mobile this afternoon. Weather clear and warm.

THE SPORTLIGHT
BY GRANTLAND RICE

BROOKLYN'S RECESSIONAL.
(Admitting that Kipling beat us to it.)

The tumult and the clouting dies,
The captains and the teams depart;
Still stands our daily sacrifice
To help give other clubs a start;
A fickle dope, he with us yet;
Let us forget—let us forget.

Far-called, our pitchers melt away;
Our batsmen whale the ball like clowns;
Lo! all our pomp of yesterday
Is one now with the Yanks and Browns;
In May we stood the One Best Bet—
Let us forget—let us forget.

If, drunk with pennant dope, we loosed
Wild tongues that babbled of the flag—
Such boastings as the Giants used
To josh us when we came to lag—
O fickle dope, be with us yet;
Let us forget—let us forget.

For pop-eyed fan that puts his trust
In pitching arm or batting eye,
Soon finds his dope is full of dust
Where naught sticks but the alibi;
From frantic boast of pennant pace
Our hope is now for seventh place.

The umpiring, as usual, is now admitted to be worse than ever in both leagues. It is always worse than ever and always will be.

There never was a good umpire if one is to take complete testimony on the subject. Chicago thinks that Brennan should be boiled in oil and New York swears that O'Day has always had a stiletto ready for the Giants and a helping hand for the Cubs at every turn. Neither an Washington or Philadelphia be brought to furnish three cheers for O'Loughlin. And so it goes.

The umpiring in both leagues is far from perfect. In a good many instances it isn't even average stuff at any time. But we doubt if it will ever be much better with eighteen players cursing and raving over every other decision and 20,000 fans 150 feet away jeering and hooting each close one given against the home team. The umpiring may be bad but it isn't as bad as the sportsmanship of a good many players and a good many more fans.

As a matter of fact, the umpire situation is the one weakness of the game. Pennants are often turned upside down by raw decisions or bad blunders from the official judges. One of these beat the White Sox out of a pennant in 1908 where the Tigers won on the final day. trolt was called out after he had crossed first base by ten feet, the umpire having his back turned at the time. But in the end it either evens up or must stand as it is until a remedy can be found.

Most people imagine that football critics are allowed to give their rulings without a whisper of protest, and yet football captains and coaches of leading colleges rear and rave like wild men over certain decisions. And the main reason more in the stands don't join in the protest is that only about 1 per cent know what the hotel bill is all about, anyway, in the general smear of twenty-two athletes piled into one writhing mass.

Umpiring is the toughest game ever invnted, and always will be. The balance of power placed with their tribe is more than any good man should want or any bad man should have. Their decisions, too often a guess, are too big a part of the game. But what's the answer? No umpires at all, or poor umpires? There seems to be no alternative, judging from what both leagues think of their official judges back of the mask.

H. F.—Yes, Jim Thorpe is still with the Giants, but the seat of his uniform trousers is reported to be veering toward the slick and worn. James had no idea how hard a mere wooden bench could get to be after a two months' test.

NOTES FROM THE EMPIRE

Covington, the lively third baseman for Cordele, has won the nickname of Billy Bounce.

In Schuyler Brunswick has a second baseman who knows how to hit, besides playing around the bag like an old-timer. Schuyler has been enjoying a hitting spree for over a week now and is climbing fast.

Waycross and Americus have six games together this week, three in each city. As both teams seem to have hit their stride recently it is believed the games will be anything but one-sided. Last Saturday, 10 to 3, the newspapers names in Brunswick next week. This is because Brunswick swapped a series of three games with Valdosta last week to enable Valdosta to play at home for a local celebration.

Kite, former manager of the Brunswick team, has returned to Brunswick and may remain with the team as catcher. Seifert, who has done a lot of the receiving for Brunswick, has given up playing and has gone to his home in Birmingham.

Umpire McAfee, who, by the way, is a Georgian, calling Smithville home, has made good with a rush in the Empire. He is a jolly fellow and when he calls a decision the players know he means it. Derrick, another new umpire, has shown players that he means business, and it is believed the Empire will be less wrangling from now on.

It is reported that Vanderlip, a left-hander, may be traded to Cordele for Fillingham, a spitball artist. Vanderlip has been playing with Waycross all season and when his arm is in shape is hard to beat.

Another Jordan has broken into the Empire company. He hails from North Carolina, and is a right-handed pitcher of ability. In build he resembles Nap Rucker, and can smile at times just like Otto Jordan, of the Valdosta team. The two Jordans are no kin. The new Jordan is getting a trial with Waycross and may stick.

When Brunswick sold Jack Hawkins, combination fielder and pitcher, one of the fastest men the Empire has known was disposed of. Hawkins has many friends through the state.

MACK AND M'GRAW SEEK RECORDS FOR WINNINGS

Connie Mack and John McGraw are heading straight for two big league records. Should these rival managers succeed in piloting their teams to the pennant, all modern records will have been shattered, for nobody in these days of baseball has succeeded in annexing five championships for one club. McGraw has already won four for the Giants and Mack has corraled the same number for the Athletics.

Fred Clarke has landed four and Frank, while managing the Cubs, came across with four, but no other big league leader can point to a record any way near that mark.

McGraw won his first pennant for New York in 1904, repeated in 1905 and then came back in 1911 and 1912. Mack's work has been every bit as clean cut. He first landed a flag in 1902. Three years later, in 1905, he grabbed another, and then in 1910 and 1911 repeated.

Believed That English Golfers Will Get All That They Can Handle

BOSTON, July 16.—Notwithstanding the American golfing defeat abroad last month, it is the belief of Tom McNamara and Mike Brady, two of the players who returned today, that there is sufficient golfing material in this country to meet successfully the counter attack of the British and French professionals at the Country club this fall.

In the international team from the other side of the Atlantic will be composed of Edward Bay, Harry Vardon, Wilfred Reid, of England, and Arnaud Massy and Louis Tollier, of France.

The American open championship will be held on September 17 and 18 over the same course on which the amateur championship was decided three years ago. The links are slightly under 6,400 yards, but some of the holes are so narrow and well trapped that straight and far driving is at a premium.

The foreign players are expected here late in August or early in September and will probably play several New York, Philadelphia and Boston courses before beginning practice at the Country club. Later, several of them may visit the west.

McNamara said that McDermott, who finished in fifth place in the British championsaip, would make another effort in 1915 to win the leading golfing title of the world.

Dundee vs. Welsh

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 16.—Johnny Dundee, the lightweight who recently jumped from the featherweight division, was matched today to fight Freddie Welsh, British champion, twenty rounds at Vernon either August 15 or September 9. Welsh wired from Edmonton, Canada, accepting terms.

NO-HIT BATTLE FOR KING COLE.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 16. Leonard "King" Cole, former star in the Chicago National ranks and now with the Columbus Association team, pitched a no-hit game here Tuesday, defeating the locals by 3 to 1. The league leaders made this tally on a pass, an error and a sacrifice. Cole struck out four men. The Columbus team made the cipher look all the larger by making eleven hits off the opposing twirler.

TY COBB, the "Georgia Peach," was the only player in the big leagues to hit over .400 in 1912. He maintained his prestige for seven years as the heaviest batsman of the American League, with an average of .410 the past season.

"Heinie" Zimmerman, of the Cubs, is the new heavy hitting leader of the Nationals, displacing good old Hans Wagner, of Pittsburgh, who for eight years had been the National's heaviest stickman. "Zim" hit .363 in 1912 and led in total bases, making 14 home runs.

RENEWED BULL SUPPORT CAUSED RISE IN COTTON

Market in New York Closed 4 to 6 Points Higher Than the Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 16.—A feeling that the crop is the soundest and the most profitable one in cotton, owing to a considerable period of dry, hot weather, seemed to be the most favorable single impression on sentiment in the cotton market this morning. The demand was rather more active and general than for some time past, and after opening steady, at an advance of three to four points, the market sold about six to nine points net higher on active months. Liverpool was just about as due on to New York close of yesterday and private cables reported a better undertone on scattered buying inspired by fear of high temperatures in Texas.

The market continued steady late in the forenoon on foreign buying, covering and a scattered demand from local bulls, who were encouraged by the official forecasts for continued dry weather. Noon prices were about 5 to 9 points net higher.

Trading was less active during the early afternoon. Reports that the Southwest was offering new crop cotton for August shipments more freely and appreciation of conditions in China, appeared to check fresh buying, but there was no important selling and prices held within 3 or 4 points of the best.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, July 16.—Cotton futures opened steady, 1 point down, to 5 points up. Cables were not as good as due and private messages from Liverpool stated that disquietude now was coming from China in regard to the controversy with Shanghai. Texas temperatures were balanced by continued dry weather in the cotton region, high temperatures in the southwest and by better weather conditions, especially from Mississippi. The forecast promised no change in weather conditions. Scattered Close was met by very moderate offerings and at the end of the half hour of business prices were 3 to 6 points over yesterday's close.

The market had a very steady tone though the undertone in spite of many disquieting reports concerning the Balkan and the Chinese situations, which grew more pessimistic in tone as the morning grew older. Early offers were met offset by the drouthy conditions in the belt. Prices showed very small changes at the latest, set standing 4 to 6 points over the last quotations of yesterday. At noon the trading months were 1 to 4 points over yesterday's final figures.

Saving and Investing

THE JULY FIRST PAYMENTS.

BY JOHN M. OSKISON

The last day in June is a favorite date on which to end the "fiscal year" of a corporation. It happens, therefore, that more money is paid out on July 1, in interest and dividends, than on any other date. So if the investor will study the figures given out on the first of July he may know whether investments generally are faring better than before, or worse.

For the most complete figures the amount paid out as interest to investors in American bonds and as dividends to owners of American stocks as $248,414,000. Of this big total interest payments amounted to $147,536,000 and dividends to stockholders made up the rest—$98,884,005.

Those who are repeating the doleful cry that this country is on the edge of a panic, "ailent" or any other kind, might to consider the figures. They might get some encouragement from comparing them with those of last year and previous years.

Last year interest and dividend disbursements on July 1 were a little more than $10,000,000 short of this year's figures. In 1911 the figure was approximately $250,000,000, and in 1910 it was just about $232,000,000.

We are growing steadily as a nation of investors. Take the figures of June 1. This year $105,000,000 were paid out to holders of American stocks and bonds, as against $100,000,000 paid out on June 1, 1912, and but $80,000,000 on June 1, 1911.

It is customary to speak of security owners as a small percentage of our people, and of what they get in interest and dividends as an inconsiderable share of total earnings. But—

Over 70,000 persons own stock in a single one of our railroads; and if the dividend and interest payments over a period of ten years were saved by those who receive them, they would more than suffice to buy all the railroads in this country!

COTTON GOSSIP

Illuss-Dempcrat says: Lack of soil moisture in the west is resulting dry and very hot weather, was stressed by the agricultural bureau and cotton region weekly bulletin, and the cotton market reflected a decided steady undertone. Liverpool reported a heavy volume and the element of enterprise was wholly absent. During a number of years past legislative attacks on the cotton market have kept talent and trade in a more or less disturbed state of mind. Now, when the parties at interest are denied a hearing and an opportunity to plead their cause, the market simply grows into lethargy and awaits developments. Neither merchant nor speculator cares to assume the risk incident to the impossible liquidation of old responsibilities under entirely new conditions, which the banks are determined to make prohibitive. Meanwhile barring some billish cotton crop weather and weevil reports from certain sections, the trade is in no position to be progressing in the direction of a large yield. Spinners have not been disposed to make forward needs in the volume usual at this time of the year and evidently will not change their now feeling the rings with the business. For this reason, the market underwriter lacks encouraging features for the bull element at this time.

Think Union Pacific and Reading are attractive. Buy Pan Am. Think well of Missouri Pacific. The new management of this property will make a great showing. Think it within a reasonable guess that stocks have gone from weak hands into the safest deposit boxes and rich financial institutions who have the patience to wait for results.—Washington.—Advices that Wilson has been summoned to City of Mexico to Washington, to confer with the administration on Mexican situation.

It may take time to get market out of this rut but it will come. Buy stocks that look the better and some of present bargains will be appreciated. For a patient trader buy Chino, Great Northern, Reading.—Hubbard.

Content buying Reading.

Better close on the 19th morning than in two weeks. Believe in higher prices this week.—Potter.

STAMN GOSSIP

Inter Ocean says:

Chicago—Sentiment in wheat is somewhat bearish with the outside trade light. The bears are talking lower prices but conservative people are looking at the market as a carrying charge proposition and do not expect much change from present levels. Trade in coarse grains is practically made. Bulls in corn are figuring that as corn is a weather market it will depend on the all breaks. Bulls in oats say the best traders believe that it should be sold on bulges. Sentiment on oats is mixed.

Wheat—The market seems to have a little or no rallying power left. Bulls are unable to follow the decline and think some reaction is overdue.

Corn—We look for a nervous market but believe prices will rule firm.

Oats—The lack of outside support, coupled with heaviness in the cash situation in resulting in further scattered liquidation and especially heavy short selling by local professionals.

Provisions—There was more or less profit-taking yesterday but the declines were moderate and the market by no means is a weak one.

Mr. Mouston, of Kansas City, says Kansas has had three days of heat and high winds. No rain in sight. Crops will suffer if rain is much. Half crop is probably all that is possible now.

LeConte wires from Fargo: From Watertown to Belwon some oats, barley and rye harvested. Early wheat taking color. Hot and ideal for rust development but see no indication of rust.

Fargo bulletin: Missouri fair in south, showers in north. Dakotas, Nebraska and Kansas fair, some local showers in east.

Hutchinson, Kan., says corn badly hurt by weather. Salina, Kan.: Corn practically gone here.

Concordia, Kan.: Corn damaged 20 per cent past two days.

Topea, Kan.: Some damage and situation critical.

Clifton, Kan.: Only half crop now in sight.

Pipeton, Okla.: Corn fields burned up.

FINANCIAL BUREAU REPORTS.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Financial bureau says: Trading movements in the leading stocks, with scant evidence toward improvement in prices, may be see today. We would look for good buying opportunities on the recessions and attractive issues with the intention to secure moderate profits. Well informed sources are inclined to believe that outright purchases for the long pull will prove highly profitable. Information channels are more cheerful.

NEW YORK COTTON LETTER

NEW YORK, July 16.—The market has ruled quiet but steady. There was some selling or August on and after opening which was attributed to profit-taking and the buying of the summer options soon to come from the west and interests here. The rally came on buying by the same brokers as yesterday and there was not a little cotton for sale. A prominent Wall street operator is said to be among the principal buyers today. The continued drouthy heat in Texas is said to be the cause for buying of the new crop. Sentiment is somewhat more bullish today and further advance is looked for though the bears contend that a further rally will bring out heavy selling by those who are hoping for a higher basis. It is believed some of the up-town crowd have sold today.—Anderson.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 16.—The market shows activity and the character of the buying is better than we have been in several weeks. Continued favorable news from the crop growing section is beginning to have some effect on the investment public. Reports of earnings for the month of June are generally better than last year when prices were very much higher. These do not developed large reductions, but do indicate an advance in securities.—Orr.

SEMI-WEEKLY INTERIOR MOVEMENT.

HAYWARD & CLARK COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 16.—Contrary to indications of yesterday, the weather bureau's report closely cooler over night in north Texas, Oklahoma and western Arkansas, which, of course, is distinctly favorable and enhances the prospects of some purely local rains in the near future. The map shows generally fair in the east half, part cloudy to fair in the eastern half, with some nice rains in the northwest, particularly in the coast districts.

Indications today are for generally fair in the central belt, increasing cloudiness and some showers in the northwest. The market opened unchanged, but soon advanced on the strength of New York. Advices from there shows nervousness over the small stock there and the increasing export business. Spot interest is also exhibiting a leading quarters to boost the market.

Mr. Price issued a bullish circular with the market 30 to 40 points. Then we have to contend with the conventional speculation of a short scare every year during the critical period, besides satisfactory checks selling and making the market responsive to little buying. The pointing out of crop defects, whether real or imaginary, but reaching many cars, may also have the effect of lowering the July condition reports which constitute the basis of bureau figures. Hicks, reports cotton opening.

That the advance is systematically directed at the short interest is indicated by small daily gains in prices which make shorts nervous. New York reported Hicks, Pell and the spot houses

PRICE CURRENT ON GRAIN

CINCINNATI, Ohio, July 16.—Price-Current says: Nothing developed in the past week to change the situation of the yield of June except in the direction of a betterment of spring wheat and the coarse grains. Winter wheat is being harvested. Rains have generally been over the dry area but not sufficient in quantity, and corn is supplied with moisture for a couple of weeks. It will take a good deal of rain to keep corn moving at its present condition. High temperatures are not really bad for corn except where the soil is short of moisture. Oats crop is short of last year by one-fifth. Much depends on the corn crop as to the outcome of the coarse grain markets, and of that there is still plenty of time to make or break the production.

COTTONSEED OIL MARKET

NEW YORK, July 16.—The market for cotton oil was fairly active this morning, new high records being made for the month on the active advantage of light pit offerings, scarcity of old crop supplies and urgent requirements of refiners, local professionals became aggressive on the buying side, forcing up prices from one to close to 20 points from last night. This strength served to induce new speculative demand for fall and winters. Closed:

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET WAS STRONG AND HIGHER

Canadian Pacific, Lehigh Valley, Union Pacific, Interboro and Steel Led Advance

NEW YORK, July 16.—Almost every stock traded in opened higher today. The demand was keener than for several days and there was lively bidding for the leading stocks. Gains in a block of 2,000 shares at 2.15¾ to 2.15¾, across by Union Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, Atchison, Atlantic Coast Line and Erie first preferred.

Trading was active most of the first hour and the market appeared to have been moved from the torpor of the last few days. Stocks in which short interest is believed outstanding were especially good demand. Canadian Pacific was unusually active. The opening transaction was a block of 2,000 shares at 2.15¾ to 2.15¾, a maximum gain of 1¾. Toward the close of the first hour the market grew quieter with fractional recessions in some of the leading stocks.

Trading multiplied at noon with speculation in Canadian Pacific, Steel and Reading most conspicuous features. Canadian Pacific from 215¾ to 217¼, a gain on the day of 3¼. Reading within a half point of best. Interest in lag earlier, was participated in, toward noon. Union Pacific gained nearly two points and Steel preferred 1¼ points under Steel 1.

A decided change occurred today in the appearance of the stock market. Trading during the first hour was larger than the total transactions last Friday. Substantial gains were made in moderate buying orders at the opening. London and Paris bought Canadian Pacific and Paris took Amalgamated Copper. Buying orders were executed promptly by profit-taking, which at times caused slight recessions. These offerings were well taken and the list as a whole held strong throughout the session. Best prices of the day were recorded at noon.

A significant feature was the offering of foreign money for ninety days at 4¼ per cent. There was almost the first indication here of relaxation in the money situation. Bankers and brokers regarded as an influence in the improvement of the market here as well as abroad.

Bonds, steady.

Traders who thought the pace too fast, in view of the recent dullness, sold stocks in the afternoon. Realizing sales were first taken and the only effect was to check the advance. Representatives of the eastern railroads and of the employees in conference agreed to arbitration strengthened bullish confidence in railroad shares, although trading diminished in the last part of the day.

The end of the day found the list at its best prices, with a more nervous as the advance continued with no signs of a halt. Toward the quarter and bid for stocks to cover, forcing up prices of the speculative issues still higher. Realizing sales in the last few minutes caused a reaction from the major portion of the advance was retained.

Closed easy.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

The Fancy Poultry Situation of This Day and Time

WHEN a farmer is once convinced and interested that thoroughbred fowls pay better than scrubs they often develop into the very best of breeders and do not hesitate to pay $10 a sitting for eggs and $25 to $100 each for good male birds. As a rule they are quick to catch on and they soon find that the best is none too good for them. I have seen men that it was almost impossible to sell a bird to for $2, and simply because they were not posted as to their value and every bird seemed alike to them, but after they had tried them one or two years and had seen the difference these men would often come back and buy the best and highest priced birds I had. This thing is gradually growing all the time and the only thing a poultryman has to be careful about to always make his business pay handsomely on the investment is to keep his birds up to the highest standards. Never allow them to degenerate and keep as good, if not a little better than any of his neighbors-or near-by breeders. When this is once done and he treats his customers right and gives them the value of their money he has established for himself a trade that will last through life and get better and better all the time. The amount of business a man does depends altogether on the amount of push and energy he puts behind his business. This applies to everything. This coming winter will see, I believe, more high priced birds sold than ever before. The people of the south have become educated to the value of fancy fowls and they do not hesitate to pay the price for something that will go out and win. In this city of Atlanta competition no man can expect to make money as easily as they did ten years ago. Therefore the little details have to be watched more closely. our country is fast developing and being thickly settled, and as we have hundreds of breeders now where ten years ago there was probably one there is a greater demand created every day for the best of everything. The prices of something to eat has grown higher and higher every year and five years from today will see them twice as high as they are at present. Therefore, you cannot make a mistake by keeping the number of birds you can well care for and keeping them up to the very highest stage of perfection.

Comparing poultry keeping, farming and live stock breeding with banking and merchandise business there are ten chances better for a big per cent of profit to be made out of these industries than there is in the banking and merchandise business. The difference comes in this way. The banker or the merchant usually has sufficient capital to handle their business on and by the very closest of business ability there are but few banks or merchants that net 8 per cent on their investment, and one can readily see what a big per cent of profit they receive from poultry and live stock, taking investment into consideration, compared to what there is in banking. The only thing is we never stop to figure the amount invested compared to the per cent of profit we make. We expect too much profit on the small amount of capital in this work and if it was not that poultry breeding and farming did pay a large per cent of profit there would never be so many in it as there is. Another trade that is but little judgment used in this line of work compard to what there is in other lines. The fancy and commercial poultry business stands in a class to itself when it comes to showing a big per cent of profit and especially if the people who are engaged in this work would learn to produce their feed. This is the biggest item of expense connected with the business. That will eventually adjust itself and when it does the southern breeder will have the greatest opportunity of any one to make a big per cent of profit out of their work.

Yours very truly,

Lamar Reams

POULTRY FEED POULTRY FEED

San Francisco, Cal., June 28, 1913.

Mr. J. P. Gentry,
Of Aunt Patsy's Poultry Feed Co.,
Memphis, Tenn.

Dear Sir:

If the freight from Memphis to San Francisco is not more than $1 per cwt., please ship me 50 bags of Aunt Patsy's Poultry Feed, the Egg Producer.

I came to California last fall, from Tennessee, and when I got here the property on which I located had quite a number of hens and a few turkeys; among the turkeys there were a few young ones just hatched The hens were not laying at all, but with the aid of Aunt Patsy, which I brought with me, I soon had them laying profitably, I raised the young turkeys altogether on Aunt Patsy, and to my surprise when they were six months old they commenced to lay freely, so you may know that I am pleased with Aunt Patsy's Poultry Feed, and would like for you to get out the above order as soon as possible.

My neighbors are surprised at the great yield of eggs from my hens, and if you could get a reasonable freight rate I have no dobt but that a great deal of your feed could be sold in this state; as the poultry interest here is large, and the people are disgusted with the poor feed on the market.

Very truly,
G. W. FRANCIS.

Ask Your Dealer for Aunt Patsy Poultry Feed, the Egg Producer.

WHAT TO FEED IN ORDER TO SECURE EGGS.

If you want eggs during the latter part of the summer and early fall you must feed your hens on a thoroughly balanced ration, in the shape of a dry mash. We claim Aunt Patsy's Poultry Feed to be the best dry mash on the market; from the fact that it is composed of the highest grade of raw material that can possibly be secured. This feed has no filler or adulterated, cheap stuff, whatever, but contains every ingredient that in the egg itself is composed; and if you will only think a moment, you will agree with me that if you put into the hen's craw the ingredients of which the egg is made, you have a right to expect her digestive organs to convert these ingredients into the egg and to secure a greater yield of eggs from your hen than if you fed her otherwise.

Ask any successful poultryman what he thinks of Aunt Patsy, and give us a trial order.

Very truly,
AUNT PATSY POULTRY FEED CO.

Furnished

FOR RENT—ON PONCE DE LEON AVENUE, A LARGE, HANDSOME NEW HOME, BEAUTIFULLY FURNISHED, AND EVERY MODERN CON

FOR SALE—REAL ESTATE

$50.00 CASH.

No matter in what strained condition a person's financial affairs are in; no matter if you make just enough to keep going, or may be more than enough, there are times when you get, maybe, $50, $75 or $100 ahead. What happens, some time out of ten, it is gone before you know it and where "the Lord only knows."

On first thought there seemed very little chance for a person in this condition to ever make any money to speak of. People in Atlanta see and hear of real estate transactions every day in the week. Lots of us wonder, and most of us envy the persons involved in these deals. It's mighty easy to become a land pirate, and much more satisfactory to be envied than to envy.

This day and time property can be bought on almost any terms. You would be agreeably surprised if you looked a little further into the matter. There are a great number of small places that can be bought for $500 on up. Most of these transactions only require $40 or $50 cash, the balance $10 or more per month. In fact, the terms, as a rule, are made to suit the purchaser.

But $50 is a piece of property, carry it for several months, or a year or two if necessary before you realize it you have got several hundred dollars on hand that you never in the world would have saved. After that you will find it pretty easy to trade around.

We have quite a number of small places, some of which are rented for $5 and $10 per month; this making payments much easier. It will be to your advantage to come in and let us show you these places.

New $25,000 Residence for Peachtree Road – Will Lay Tracks on Ivy Street on Thursday – Kirkwood to Issue Bonds for Schools, Sewers and for Street Improvement. Jackson Street Sale–Investment and Other Sales

J. C. Street, of Opelika, Ala., will begin shortly the erection of a $25,000 residence on Peachtree road, north of the Seaboard Air Line bridge.

His residence will occupy a lot with 100 feet frontage on the east side of the road adjoining the Moore property on the north. It will replace some old houses at present on the property.

TRACKS ON IVY STREET.

The Georgai Railway and Electric company will on Thursday begin to relay its tracks on Ivy street, which has been regraded and filled. As soon as the tracks are laid, the county will relay the pavement, and Ivy street, once noted for its mountains and valleys, will be a level thoroughfare from Peachtree street through to Edgewood avenue and Decatur street.

Complaint was made to Mayor Woodward of the torn up condition of many streets, including Georgia avenue and West Mitchell street. He summoned Thomas K. Glenn, of the street car company, who said that work would be started at once on the Ivy street tracks.

This also enables the mayor to approve a resolution for the purchase of material for the work on West Peachtree street.

KIRKWOOD BONDS.

A local bill is now before the legislature permitting the town of Kirkwood to issue $15,000 worth of bonds for improvements.

The bonds are split into three equal parts of $5,000 each, and will go toward

JUDGE SPEER'S INSPECTOR RECALLED TO WASHINGTON

Judge's Recent Speech Believed to Have Prompted Senate to Get Report

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MACON, Ga., July 16.—R. C. Lewis, inspector from the department of justice of Washington, has been called to Washington after a month's inspection of the federal court records of the southern district of Georgia, which courts are presided over by Judge Emory Speer. He was called by the senate for his report of the special investigations he has made since he was sent here. The call by the senate came through a resolution of Senator Works, by California, which is thought to have been prompted by the recent speech of Judge Speer before the Iowa Bar association, in which he declared that he was being shadowed and trailed by detectives from the department of justice.

MILITANTS' BOMB EXPLODES IN MAIL

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, July 16.—An explosion, attributed by the police to militant suffragettes, was reported to have occurred at the Dublin postoffice. CHINESE PROVINCES IN FIGHT FOR CONFEDERACY

Eight Provinces Prepare to Take Up Arms—Fighting Opens in One

(By Associated Press.)

PEKING, July 16.—Eight provinces—Kiang-Si, Kiang-Su, Kwang-Si, Fo-Kien, Sze-Chuen, Hu-Nan, Ngan-Wei and Kwang-Tung—are preparing to declare their independence and to form a southern Chinese confederacy, according to apparently authoritative statements.

Fighting continues in Kiang-Si. Large numbers of northern troops are proceeding there.

The attitude of the Japanese is bitterly commented on here. The Chinese believe they are stirring up strife everywhere. Japanese officers are said to be fighting with the rebels. The presence of Japanese gunboat in the fighting zone lends corroboration to this belief. The southerners openly claim they have received assurances of Japanese support.

The German consulate at Nanking was surrounded today by insurgents.

Apparently the trouble arose owing to Germans recently permitting the extradition of two revolutionaries who took refuge in the German concession at Hankow.

MULHALL TELLS OF FUND TO FIGHT LEGISLATION

Probe of Council for Industrial Defense Would Bring Surprises, He Says

WASHINGTON, July 16.—A fund of $500,000 to $700,000 a year raised by the national council for industrial defense—an adjunct of the National Association of Manufacturers—for opposing legislation the manufacturers did not favor, was described to the senate lobby committee today by Martin M. Mulhall. He testified he had no personal knowledge of the existence of such a fund, but declared that a collector for the organization had recently given those figures to the New York World.

"I often have thought and have suggested," said Mulhall, "that the council *ought to be investigated by the post-*office. If it were investigated, I feel that the gentlemen who run it will have a hard time accounting for the money collected."

Mulhall swore money had been paid to him from the fund for the political purposes.

U. S. TREASURY HANDLED $7,071,520,000 IN 1913

Transactions for Fiscal Year Make It Greatest Bank in the World

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The United States treasury handled in actual cash during the fiscal year ending June 30 the sum of $7,071,520,000, breaking all previous records and stamping the treasury, officials declared today, as the greatest banking institution in the world.

Reflecting the tremendous growth of the government's business, this high record, including income, outgo and operation within the treasury, exceeded the cash transactions of the previous year by $469,769,000, and those of three years ago by $1,478,826,000. The figures show that treasury officials during the year handled in cash nearly twice the amount of the total stock of money in the United States, which is estimated at $3,720,000,000. Including bonds, checks and warrants, the treasury handled over $10,000,000,000 during the year. This vast aggregation of wealth, which does not include the transactions of the subtreasuries, was handled, it was pointed out today, without the loss of a cent to the government.

The receiving teller of the government took in over the counter $75,353,000 during the year; the paying teller cashed $118,177,000 in checks and warrants; the shipping teller sent $884,518,000 to various parts of the country, and the "change teller" made "small change" for more than $50,000,000.

The government received for redemption during the year $606,666,000 in timeworn United States currency, and $675,-889,000 in national bank notes.
